I. THE FIELDWORK SEQUENCE

Field Education has been identified by the Council on Social Work Education (CSWE) as the signature pedagogy, defined as “the central form of instruction and learning in which a profession socializes its students to perform the role of practitioner.” As such, CSWE goes on to explain that “the intent of field education is to connect the theoretical and conceptual contribution of the classroom with the practical world of practice setting.”

A. Purpose and Objectives of the Fieldwork Sequence

The School of Social Work Field Education program is designed to provide new and challenging experiences for social work students, and to maximize learning opportunities. The program engages students in supervised direct service activities at micro- and macro-levels, and provides practice experiences in application of theory and skills acquired in all foundation areas. Students are prepared for entry into a specialized population concentration area of practice, with the ability to utilize a variety of intervention techniques in a range of settings with diverse populations.

A variety of public, private, and for-profit agencies and organizations in Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, San Diego, Santa Barbara, Ventura and Sonoma counties provide fieldwork internships for our campus students, and for our Distance Education students.

Fieldwork agencies reflect the diverse settings in which social workers are employed, such as aging, disabilities, child welfare, health, housing, mental health, and probation. The selected agencies and their respective field instructors and preceptors have a major role in the professional and personal development of students. They provide an essential range of learning opportunities within the context of the dynamic and ever-changing service needs of the communities they serve.

The School's fieldwork objectives are guided by and consistent with the overall objectives of the MSW program and the School's mission statement. Students are given both broad and specific opportunities to be able to:

- Integrate and apply knowledge, values, and intervention skills to multicultural practice with diverse populations, and develop the skills to translate theory into practice
- Develop the ability to select the practice and/or intervention approach that would best serve the individual and/or population group, including micro and macro strategies
- Develop advanced knowledge, skills, and abilities within a multicultural context in a specialized concentration area of practice: Children, Youth, and Families (CYF) or Older Adults and Families (OAF)
- Develop an understanding and competent level of skill in a variety of social work methods and modalities in direct practice arenas; students who select an administrative focus in their second field internship period will develop a competent level of practice skills across the management/administration continuum
- Develop an understanding of and demonstrate a commitment to professional social work values and ethics, based on the National Association of Social Workers "Code of Ethics" (www.socialworkers.org)

- Develop the capacity for self-evaluation and autonomy
- Learn effective collaboration techniques with other professionals in the service of clients
- Develop an understanding of service delivery systems and the role of social workers in facilitating organizational and policy changes that are sensitive to the needs of ethnic, sexual minority, and other oppressed populations
- Integrate course work theory and research into direct application and practice within an agency
- Demonstrate ability to evaluate one's own practice through appropriate research methods
- Contribute knowledge from the fieldwork experience to the classroom for the purpose of mutual sharing
- Have exposure to and experience with the full range of practice activities on the continuum of social work practice in either direct practice, i.e., information and referral, networking, case management, comprehensive psychosocial assessments, diagnostic assessments, treatment planning, crisis intervention, short-term casework, long-term casework, community outreach, and advocacy; or, in administrative, i.e., program planning, program development, program evaluation, budget procedures, staff development, personnel policies, supervision, needs assessments, mezzo- and macro-change strategies in internship settings
- Work with individuals and families and facilitate or co-facilitate a group situation
- Collaborate with other agency professional staff
- Develop knowledge of agency structure, mission, and interdependence with the surrounding community
- Participate in case conferences, including multidisciplinary conferences, or in multidisciplinary planning conferences and activities, where applicable
- Receive a minimum of one hour of individual supervision from the field instructor each week (in addition to group supervision); additional supervision may be provided by the preceptor
- In the first year of fieldwork internship, have 50 percent of their time in direct practice areas, to include interventions with individuals, families, and groups, and collateral telephone contacts; the remainder of fieldwork hours will involve supervision, staff/agency meetings, in-service training, documentation, community/agency interface, and collaboration activities
- In the second year of fieldwork internship, have either a direct practice internship or an administrative/macro internship: in the direct practice internship, 50 percent of the students' time will include interventions with individuals, families, and groups, and collateral telephone contacts; in an administrative internship, 50 percent of the students' time will involve program planning, program development, and administrative activities

B. Organization of Fieldwork

The traditional Academic Year consists of four semesters over two years, with classroom and fieldwork beginning at the end of August/early September and ending in mid-May. Emphasis in the first year of fieldwork is placed upon developing the foundation of appropriate social work practice skills and knowledge, which includes developing relationships, acquiring interviewing skills, mastering beginning psychosocial assessment, making diagnostic assessments, and developing intervention skill.

During the second year, students are expected to develop an increased insight and depth of understanding of agency and client systems and social work practice skills. Students may select either a direct practice or administrative internship (or a combination, as available). The fieldwork seminar meets weekly in the first year of fieldwork, and every other week in the second year. The field seminars are the vehicle for the integration of classroom and fieldwork learning, including the integration of social work values and ethics. The seminar, which is classroom based and mandatory, provides an opportunity for students to examine and understand their professional roles, assists them in understanding the dynamics of personal change, and helps them in the examination and integration of personal and professional values.

Each of the following program models has a strong fieldwork component:

1. Academic Year Model (AY)

This model parallels the Academic Year schedule. Students take required and elective courses, including the required Field Education courses. The Field Education sequence provides six units of academic credit each year, for a total of 12 units of academic credit. Each internship requires 500 hours of fieldwork in an agency setting, or 16 hours per week, for a total of 1000 hours of fieldwork. No credit is given for any student's prior work or educational/life experiences. During the second year of fieldwork, seminars meet every other week.

Students have two fieldwork internships in two different agencies during their course of study. Regardless of the size of the agency and the availability of multiple geographic locations and/or programs, the agency can be utilized as an internship site for only one of the two periods of fieldwork.

2. Advanced Standing Model (ADV)

This program is designed to facilitate completion of MSW degree requirements for students who have earned a Bachelor's degree in Social Work (BASW or BSW). The ADV Program eliminates the redundancy of the repeating core social work concepts taught at the BASW level, such as values, ethics, and methods of practice, which are also taught during the first year of the MSW program.

Upon successful completion of an intensive Summer Bridge model, which includes 160 hours of fieldwork, the core content from the first year of the traditional MSW program (or 30 units) will be waived and students will be Advanced to Candidacy to begin year two of the Academic Year MSW program curriculum.

3. MSW Distance Education Degree Program (DE)

This program helps fulfill our mission of being responsive to the needs of agencies and their clients, along with communities, students, and the profession of social work. The DE program typically serves rural, suburban, or semi-rural areas of California that often are impacted by the lack of professionally trained and educated MSW social workers. Most MSW graduate programs are located in urban centers where students are likely to remain after graduation.

Working closely and cooperatively with other California State University campuses, a three-year curriculum based on the School's Children, Youth, and Families concentration is offered in selected locations throughout California. Admission to the program is based on the same School of Social Work criteria that are applied to applicants for the Long Beach campus. Enrolled students will complete the same 60-unit curriculum, including fieldwork, within three years.

The program is funded in part by Title IV-E through the California Social Work Education Center (CalSWEC)–Child Welfare to train master's-level social workers to work in public child welfare. All policies, guidelines, expectations, and requirements outlined in this Fieldwork Manual apply to students in the DE program. Each DE location has a Site Coordinator, who works with Long Beach campus field faculty to ensure a positive Field Education experience for students and their agencies.

C. Special Programs

1. California Social Work Education Center (CalSWEC)–Child Welfare

This program is a unique partnership between social work education and the publicly supported child welfare structure. The CalSWEC program mission and goal is to help re-professionalize public child welfare. The intent of the program is to strengthen and enhance the quality of practice by increasing the number of professionally trained and educated public child welfare social workers.

Selected students receive a stipend, generally for two years, funded through Title IV-E monies from the federal government that have been designated for child welfare training. They participate in specialized training seminars and activities throughout the year. Students complete a seminar series of presentations on child welfare skills and are involved in a specialized child welfare job fair. Additional requirements include a course in child welfare, and their thesis focus must relate to some aspect of child welfare.

Students must commit to work in a State of California public child welfare agency for a minimum of one year for every year of support received. Students in the CalSWEC program do one of their internships in a public child welfare agency and one year in a private nonprofit agency serving Title IV-E children. (In this case, IV-E refers to clients who are TANF eligible.)

Support for part-time students is limited to current employees of County Departments of Social Services or the California School of Social Services. They receive full tuition and fees, costs for required books, and a travel allowance for each day of class or fieldwork. They must return to their agency of employment and give one year of employment for each year of financial support they receive.

To be eligible for a CalSWEC stipend, students must first be admitted into the MSW program, after which they submit an application. They are then interviewed and asked specific questions designed to ascertain their level of interest in and commitment to a career in public child welfare. Priority is given to applicants who reflect the diverse client populations currently served by child welfare agencies in California. Fluency in a high-demand language is also given priority. Years of service and other child welfare experience weigh significantly into the selection process.

2. California Social Work Education Center (CalSWEC)–Mental Health

This program provides stipends for students interested in careers in public mental health. Full-time students entering their second year of internship who are willing and able to be placed at county and county-contracted mental health outpatient agencies are eligible to apply for this program.

Students who complete this program are required to secure employment in a county or county-contracted agency immediately after graduation. Interested students should contact one of the CalSWEC Mental Health Coordinators prior to their second year of field internship.

3. Geriatric Social Work Education Consortium (GSWEC)

This program provides specialized geriatric training and stipends for Older Adults and Families concentration graduate social work students who have completed their first year of field internship. GSWEC is a program of the Partners-In-Care Foundation (PCF) and is funded by grants from various foundations.

The PCF collaborates with the Schools and schools of social work of CSULB, CSULA, USC, and UCLA to provide this unique training opportunity. Didactic learning and practice interventions are combined to train the interns to meet the challenges of geriatric social workers for the twenty-first century. Applications are received once a year, early in the spring semester. Students visit the various agencies and are interviewed by GSWEC staff. If accepted, students are then placed together at one of these comprehensive social service agencies for their second field experience.

4. Inter-University Consortium (IUC)

The Inter-University Consortium (IUC) is a one-year specialized training program in public child welfare. It is only available to students in the MSW program. It is a collaborative partnership that includes the Los Angeles County Department of Children and Family Services (DCFS) and the Paramount Unified School District for the Schools and schools of social work in the greater Los Angeles area.

The IUC program gives students experience in public child welfare practice through assignment of DCFS cases, as well as experience in working with groups of children in the school setting. Students do their field internships in one of two specialized units and have an in-depth training program. They are required to take the child welfare elective, and their thesis focus must relate to some aspect of child welfare.

In addition to being a training site for future public child welfare social workers, IUC is expected to demonstrate innovative practices that can be documented through research and program evaluation. Over the past several years, for example, CSULB's IUC students piloted a new kinship-care collaboration curriculum. At the end of each year, focus groups are conducted in order that the participating IUC students can give their feedback regarding the program's strengths and the areas that may need improvement.

IUC stipends are available by an application process for either first- or second-year field students who are in the CYF concentration. The program is not available in the summer. To be accepted, students must have a genuine interest in the field of child welfare, meet interview criteria, and make at least a one-year commitment to work for Los Angeles County DCFS following graduation.

5. Pupil Personnel Services Credential (PPSC)

The School of Social Work is approved by the California Commission on Teacher Credentialing as a site to offer the PPSC, with specializations in School Social Work and Child Welfare and Attendance. This credential program was developed to meet the increasing demand for services to children and families within the context of the educational system.

Students in the CYF concentration wishing to acquire a credential for school social work must complete a 600-hour fieldwork internship in an approved school site under a PPSC-credentialed field instructor's supervision. Fieldwork may begin early or may be extended at the end of the field period in order for students to complete the additional hours. This is available for second-year field students as well as Advanced Standing students.

The credential covers pre-kindergarten through 12th-grade service in public and other schools requiring the credential. Students must complete the School Social Work elective. They must also attend a series of workshops regarding additional curriculum issues related to school social work. Students must attend a PPSC orientation and complete an application in the year prior to second-year internship.

D. Policies and Procedures

1. Eligibility for Enrollment in Fieldwork

To enroll in the Fieldwork Sequence, students must have completed all required prerequisite classes and must be enrolled in the co-requisite practice classes.

The schedule of concurrent field and practice courses is:

Fieldwork Course	Practice Course
SW 596 A/C Fieldwork I	SW 500 Foundations for Generalist and Multicultural Social Work Practice
SW 596 B/D Fieldwork II	SW 560 Direct Intervention with Individuals and Families: Focus on Children, Youth and Families -OR-
	SW 561 Direct Intervention with Individuals and Families: Focus on Older Adults
SW 680 A/C Fieldwork III	SW 660 Direct Intervention with Groups and Families: Focus on Children, Youth and Families -OR-
	SW 661 Direct Interventions with Groups and Families: Focus on Older Adults
SW 680 B/D Fieldwork IV	SW 670 Social Work Administration

Fieldwork internships begin in fall semester for the Academic Year model, and early June for the Advanced Standing model.

Most agencies require completion of certain clearances before an internship can begin. These may include: medical clearances, including drug and TB testing; measles vaccinations; fingerprinting; character clearances; and proof of specific required training. Students placed in agencies requiring these clearances are responsible for completing them and submitting the necessary paperwork in order to begin their fieldwork assignment. Students may be required to cover the costs of these clearances.

2. Sequencing in Fieldwork

Students who withdraw from Field Education courses (which include the seminar and fieldwork internship) during any semester in which they are enrolled will be required to withdraw from their concurrent practice classes. The special circumstances necessitating the discontinuance of fieldwork will be discussed with their seminar instructor/liaison, the respective CYF or OAF Field Coordinator, the Director of Field Education, and the Associate Director of the School. The aim is to make appropriate arrangements regarding the specifics and timing of the student's re-entry into the Fieldwork sequence.

Prior to the student's re-entry, a meeting may be held with the student, Director of Field Education, and the respective Field Coordinator. The purpose of the meeting is to re-establish readiness to enter the field, to review coursework, and to make final arrangements for the fieldwork internship. Students must enroll in the Field Education course according to the sequenced position of fieldwork in the model of the MSW program to which they have been admitted, i.e., full-time, part-time.

Students who find it necessary to defer their enrollment in fieldwork due to extenuating circumstances, i.e., illness, personal emergency, etc., must discuss this issue with their liaison and respective CYF or OAF Field Coordinator. The issue will be discussed with the Director of Field Education, who will take the request forward to Associate Director for approval. The course schedule must be adjusted to reflect how appropriate concurrent courses will be scheduled.

3. Additional Requirements

a. Hours

- i. Students must complete 1000 hours of fieldwork during the course of the MSW program. Two 500-hour internships are completed in two different social work agencies. Advanced Standing students are required to complete 660 hours in one agency. Pupil Personnel Services Credential students complete 600 hours during their second year of internship.
- ii. Students spend 16 hours per week in fieldwork during the AY and ADV models.
- iii. Fieldwork hours are scheduled during full-functioning agency hours of operation, between 8am and 5pm, Monday through Friday. These hours are to meet the needs of the agency. Some agencies have limited evening hours (typically until 7 or 8pm). Students must have at least one full 8 hour weekday available for fieldwork. The other 8 hours may be divided into a minimum of two 4-hour days. 3-year students must be available for classes on Monday and Wednesday evenings, as well as Saturdays. Therefore, Saturday cannot be a field day for 3-year students. All schedules must meet with the field instructors' and Field Coordinators' approval, and reflect hours of normal agency operation when clients are seen.

- iv. Fieldwork hours will be clocked throughout the Academic Year. Students may not "bank" hours and complete fieldwork prior to the end of the fieldwork period. Hours completed may be transferred to a new agency. This is handled on a case-by-case basis. Extra hours cannot be transferred from one year to another.
- v. Students are expected to adhere to the Fieldwork Calendar for all fieldwork activities, including beginning and ending dates of fieldwork, and identified winter/spring break periods. Any variation requires clearance from the field instructor and liaison, with written notification to the Director of Field Education.
- vi. University holidays are indicated on the Fieldwork Calendar, and typically include: Veterans' Day, Thanksgiving, Winter Break, Martin Luther King Day, Caesar Chavez Day, and Spring Break. Students are not required to be in fieldwork on university holidays; however, arrangements must be made with the field instructor regarding potential client issues. (See: 3.a.viii.)
- vii. If a field day falls upon an agency-observed holiday that is not observed by the university, students must make up the missed hours.
- viii. All students are expected to maintain continuity of service for their clients during university break periods, i.e., winter and spring breaks. Students are instructed to discuss their cases with their field instructors to ensure that client continuity and professional level of social work service will be provided during any absence over break periods.
- ix. Some agencies may be able to offer fieldwork students extended experience as paid or volunteer staff following the fieldwork internship period. These situations are handled directly between the agency and the student, and the university has no involvement with—nor responsibility for—the student. Hours worked under these circumstances may not be counted for subsequent fieldwork hours. The university's insurance coverage for students does not remain in effect in these situations.
- x. Students are expected to remain in the same internship for the entire field period. If a situation develops where a change is necessary or advisable, specific steps will be taken to address the need for and subsequent transition.
- xi. If a change of agency must occur, students must complete a minimum of 167 hours (1/3 of 500 hours) in the new agency.
- xii. In a case where the student withdraws from field, the hours accumulated will not be counted as part of the required 500 hours when the student re-enters field the following year.

b. Attendance and Absence

- i. Students are expected to comply with the normal working hours, personnel policies, and practices of the fieldwork agency in which they are placed.
- ii. Any anticipated, necessary absences must be negotiated with the field instructor and liaison as early as possible, and must include plans to make up the time.
- iii. In the event of unanticipated absences (illnesses or emergencies), students must notify their respective field instructors immediately, or as soon as possible, and the seminar instructors/liaisons should be informed, as well.
- iv. If the field instructor is unavailable, it is the student's responsibility to be certain the agency is aware of their absence. Each student should discuss with their respective field instructor how to handle emergency contact situations.
- v. Missed hours must be made up if a student misses hours/days in fieldwork due to illness or special circumstances. A plan for completing missed hours should be arranged with the field instructor within one week of time missed.
- vi. Attendance is also mandatory at the field seminar. More than one absence from field seminar will require that the student complete a written assignment. (See: Seminar Attendance and Accountability.)
- vii. Students requiring accommodations or modifications of attendance or any other field requirement for disability, religious or military constraints must provide verification of those needs as soon as they are known. It is the student's responsibility to secure timely certification from Campus Disabled Students Services of need for reasonable accommodation.

c. Confidentiality

- i. Students shall adhere to all fieldwork agency policies and procedures regarding confidentiality of client and agency issues.
- ii. Any case material used for educational or instructional purposes must be disguised so that anonymity of the client is assured. Any agency materials or information used for educational or instructional purposes must be cleared by the field instructor.
- iii. Violations of confidentiality or other ethical or professional principles may result in the student's termination from fieldwork and a recommendation for termination from the MSW program. (See: Student Responsibilities. See: Resolution of Fieldwork Problems.)

d. Travel and Travel Expenses

- i. Students are expected to provide their own transportation to their field site and for field-related activities. Students who do not have access to a car are responsible for transportation to and from the agency. The agency will be selected to meet their needs to the fullest extent possible.
- ii. Students who drive must show proof of a valid California driver's license, automobile registration, and insurance meeting the State of California minimum requirements prior to entry into fieldwork. They must maintain coverage throughout the entire fieldwork period. Students who plan to drive, but who fail to provide proof of coverage, will not be placed at a fieldwork agency.
- iii. The university does not assume responsibility for student travel expenses.
- iv. The university does not assume responsibility for any claims arising from the use of an automobile by the student in the completion of fieldwork activities.
- v. Some agencies may require that students use their personal automobile to transport clients. This issue should be discussed in detail among the student, field instructor, and liaison. The discussion should include identification of possible alternative transportation strategies. Students should avoid transporting clients, if possible, and should be open about expressing their concerns. However, students who decide along with their field instructor to transport clients are responsible for adequate automobile insurance coverage and any necessary notification to their insurance carrier. Students may request a change in placement if the agency requires them to transport clients.

e. Use of Cell Phones and/or Pagers

- i. Agencies may request that students utilize agency pagers and/or cell phones during their fieldwork internship activities. Student use of these agency-supplied devices is acceptable only during assigned fieldwork hours.
- ii. Under no circumstances should a student be expected to be available by cell phone, pager, or on-call status during hours in which they are not assigned for fieldwork.
- iii. Students are not expected to use their own personal cell phones or pagers for agency business.

f. Holidays

Students should refer to the Fieldwork Calendar for official university holidays, during which time they may be exempt from internship. Students should be certain that their respective field instructors are aware of these dates. However, some agencies may be closed on days that are holidays for the agency, but not for the university (e.g., Jewish faith-based agencies, or some nonreligious holidays, such as Columbus Day).

Students whose agencies are closed on days that are not university holidays are expected to make up the hours for the days missed before the end of the semester in which the holidays may have occurred. Students who miss any fieldwork days for personal religious reasons must make up the hours before the end of the semester in which the holiday occurred. The field instructor and liaison should be advised in advance in writing of all such absences.

g. Strikes

The School's policy regarding student internships and strikes or work actions is based upon principles of educational integrity, and focuses on how educational expectations, goals, and objectives can be met and maintained. A student's educational experience--rather than the merits of any given strike or work action--is of primary consideration. The School ascribes to the educational principle that a strike-bound agency is not able to provide a climate conducive to a sound educational experience.

If an agency is in a strike situation before the beginning of the internship, no students will be placed in that agency for that academic year. If the agency reaches resolution of the strike situation at some point during the academic year, the agency may be used for a mid-year internship, depending upon re-assessment of the agency and its ability to meet the learning and educational expectations of the School. Designated field faculty will complete the assessment.

If a strike or work action situation occurs in an agency where students are in internship during the course of the academic year:

- i. The students may not remain in the internship agency during periods that persist more than two weeks.
- ii. Issues involving responsibilities to clients during to clients during strike situations will be discussed in field seminars or in special School meetings with students.
- iii. Students who miss any hours of fieldwork due to a strike or work action must make fieldwork hours, either during the regular semester break periods, or by extending the internship into the early summer months. Exceptions to this policy will be considered on a case-by-case basis for those students choosing to participate in the strike action.

h. Disasters

Should any type of disaster occur while students are at their internship, students should follow the safety protocols of their respective agencies, as well as use their personal judgment regarding their own well-being. Should a disaster occur while students are in their field seminars, students and faculty will follow the safety protocols of the university. The School of Social Work will follow university regulations regarding time that is missed from internships and classes due to disasters.

E. Risk Management

1. Reporting Fieldwork-Related Incidents or Illnesses

Risk management for fieldwork follows the policies mandated by the university, as directed by the Office of Safety and Risk Management. Information about these policies may be found at the university's Web site at: www.saferisk@csulb.edu, or by contacting the Office of Safety and Risk Management in the Facilities Management/Safety and Risk Management Building at 562.985.2283.

If an incident occurs during fieldwork in which a student is personally threatened or hurt, the student and the field instructor or agency contact person or agency director should immediately contact the liaison who must notify the Director of Field Education to review the situation. This notification should not wait until after a weekend or holiday, but should be reported on the day the incident occurred, to the fullest possible extent.

After consultation with the School's Director, the Director of Field Education will explain what actions the School will take to help ensure the student's physical and emotional well-being. The Director of Field Education is responsible for documenting the incident, and the steps taken to address the situation. A copy of this report will be forwarded to the Director and the Field Coordinators.

Students who become ill or are injured as a result of fieldwork activities may be entitled to Workers' Compensation benefits, depending upon the agency Affiliation Agreement in effect at the time. If Workers' Compensation benefits are to be offered, the student must be provided a Workers' Compensation Claim Form DWC 1 and an authorization for medical treatment within 24 hours of the date of knowledge of the illness or injury. Medical treatment is provided at a designated medical facility. This claim form will be provided to students by the School of Social Work.

2. Emergency Contact/Faculty-On-Duty (FOD)

Field Education faculty and staff have a monthly Faculty-On-Duty (FOD) Calendar, indicating which field faculty are available for any emergency assistance that may be needed from the School of Social Work Monday through Friday. Should students become involved in an incident or accident during their fieldwork hours, following is the process to follow after, of course, 911 has been contacted in the event of a true emergency.

Students' respective seminar instructor/liaisons should be contacted immediately, preferably by phone. The call may come from students, field instructors, preceptors, or any agency representative. If the circumstances involve an accident, liaisons are responsible for contacting the Director of Field Education to ensure that the students have access to medical assistance commensurate with the respective Worker's Compensation process.

If the circumstances involve an incident in which there could be a grievance, the Director of Field Education must also be contacted to discuss the appropriate intervention. The School's Director will be notified, as part of the process, for both accidents and incidents. The School of Social Work has a specific university protocol it must follow.

When liaisons are not available, their voice mails will direct callers to Patricia Mori, administrative support staff, at 562.985.5872, who will contact the FOD, in accordance with the FOD Calendar. If Patricia is not available, her voice mail will direct callers to the School of Social Work main office (also has FOD Calendar) at 562.985.4616.

Distance Education students, field instructors, and preceptors should contact their respective liaisons or Site Coordinators. The respective Site Coordinator should contact the Director of Field Education and follow the above protocol to reach the Faculty-On-Duty.

3. Safety in Fieldwork, Agency Protocols, and Orientation Checklist

Students—as well as social workers, agencies, and communities in crisis—cannot be insulated from the risks in providing services to challenged and challenging children, youth, adults, and families. However, it is expected that students typically lack the experience, knowledge, and skills that help experienced practitioners assess risk and take appropriate precautions. The School provides a Fieldwork Lab for all first-year students prior to starting fieldwork that includes discussions on safety.

The School requests that all fieldwork agencies provide an orientation and a forum for discussion about safety and risk situations that are relevant for the individual agency when students begin their internships. Topics for discussion might include, but are not limited to:

- Building and office security
- Emergency procedures, including when and how to summon security, police, or medical assistance
- Staff/intern possession of weapons, i.e., mace, firearms, knives, metal knuckles
- Safety on in-home visits and in the surrounding service communities
- Protection from animals, both on in-home visits and in the community
- Responsibilities and procedures for management of violent or potentially violent clients, or suicidal clients, or random acts of violence, i.e., "drive-by shootings"
- Disasters

The agency orientation may be a discussion or a formal presentation, but it should include an individual, detailed discussion between students and field instructors to review up-to-date agency policies and procedures, and to address students' questions and concerns.

Each field instructor and student dyad must sign the CSULB School of Social Work Orientation Checklist for Social Work Interns. This checklist must be attached to and submitted with the Learning Agreement.

4. Security of Belongings and Office/Building Security

Students must have a secure place to keep personal belongings while in their field internships to avoid the risk of theft. This space should be locked, e.g., a desk drawer or file cabinet. Students should not leave handbags, backpacks, and other personal articles visible and unattended, even in an office with the door closed. Valuables should not be brought to internship. In the event of theft of personal belongings, the agency and the School of Social Work cannot be held liable or responsible.

5. Working with Clients

a. Special Circumstances

There are risk factors in working with vulnerable and sometimes volatile clients because their coping mechanisms may be compromised. In some cases, this dynamic can contribute to problems with impulse control, and can raise issues of safety for students, their clients, and others.

There may be circumstances when students work with individuals who have difficulty with reality testing, dealing with overwhelming emotions, and controlling their anger. Some clients may be prone to violence and may possess a weapon. Other clients may be intoxicated from drugs or alcohol, may be in withdrawal, or may have medical or neurological disorders.

Students must consult with their agency field instructors regarding preparation for and handling of specific situations that are potentially difficult or threatening, such as medical emergencies, suicide or homicide risks, potential abuse, or any circumstances that might result in personal endangerment.

b. Office Meetings

When students must meet with clients with whom they assess a potential safety concern, it is essential to discuss the situation fully in advance with the agency field instructor. (See: Safety Tips.) When discussing the appointment time, students should consider whether other staff could be present. Discuss back-up plans and assistance in the event that a client becomes agitated. Students who have cell phones may want to keep them charged, easily accessible, and should have 911 and other emergency numbers programmed into the phone.

c. Home Visits

Home visits have the potential for risk. If there is a question of safety, students should plan accordingly with field instructors. It might be decided that meeting at a neutral place or going with another social worker or other professional would be appropriate. An itinerary, including the location, phone number, and time of visit, should be left with the field instructor.

Plan ahead in which room to meet and where to sit. Plan to stay alert. Students should leave immediately if a situation escalates, and whenever the student has the feeling of being at risk. Students should not enter any building or residence if they do not feel safe. Students should contact their field instructors for guidance. If the field instructor is not available, the student should contact the School field Faculty-On-Duty (FOD) for direction and support. (See: Faculty-On-Duty. See: Safety Tips.)

d. Travel by Car, Foot, or Public Transportation

When students travel by car to an agency or to home visits, they must know where they are going. Before driving to unfamiliar areas, they should consult a map for directions. They should be alert, lock doors, close windows, have sufficient fuel, and drive a car that is in good working condition. Lock handbags, backpacks, briefcases, other valuables in the trunk or out of sight prior to driving to client locations. Close a sunroof and convertible. Avoid transporting clients, unless circumstances and conditions were discussed with the field instructor and liaison/seminar instructor. (See: Safety Tips. See: Travel and Travel Expense).

When traveling by foot or by public transportation, students should carry the least amount of valuables. Money, licenses, keys, credit cards, and other essentials might be carried in a pocket. If a handbag or other item is grabbed, it is best to let it go. Wear comfortable, loose-fitting clothes and sturdy, flat walking shoes. Be alert and walk with a purpose, having a clear destination. Be aware of people in the immediate area, without staring. (See: Safety Tips.)

e. Appearance and Dress

Students must follow and respect the dress and appearance policies of their respective fieldwork agencies. Appearance and dress can be connected to safety. Agencies are also sensitive to the needs of their clients, such as elderly clients, sexually abused youth, children at schools, and other special populations who may have varying comfort levels regarding the appearance of student interns and staff.

Agency policies regarding blue jeans, shorts, T-shirts, tank tops, body piercings, tattoos, caps, insignias, political buttons, etc. must be respected. While interviewing, students should consider the agency's dress and appearance requirements. Students are guests at agencies in support of their social work education. Students who cannot adhere to the fieldwork agency's dress and appearance policies should not accept the internship assignment. Students should refer to the Learning Agreement and Comprehensive Skills evaluation regarding professional demeanor in behavior, appearance and communication.

6. Workers' Compensation

Students are placed in fieldwork agencies where an Affiliation Agreement has been signed. (See: Fieldwork Agencies.) The Affiliation Agreement is a legal document signed by each fieldwork internship agency and the University for the Protection of clients, agencies, students, and the university. Responsibility for Workers' Compensation is detailed in these Affiliation Agreements.

7. Liability Insurance

To meet fieldwork internship-site requirements, students must maintain professional liability insurance. This requirement is part of the Affiliation Agreement that fieldwork agencies and the university have for the protection of clients, agencies, students, and the university.

Effective Academic Year 2007–2008 (which includes fall, spring, and summer semesters), the Chancellor's Executive Order 986 authorizes the campus to establish a Category III Student Professional Liability Insurance Fee. This action covers the cost of providing a professional liability insurance policy for students who are enrolled in practicums and internships in social work, nursing, and other related fields of study.

When students enroll in their Field Education courses, they are asked to pay $8 each semester as part of their enrollment fee. Once students pay and are enrolled, they are automatically covered with this essential and required professional liability insurance.

Students will receive a copy of their insurance certificate from their respective seminar instructor/liasons. Students must give a copy of this certificate to their respective agency field instructors. Each CSU campus will be notified annually by the Office of the Chancellor of any change in the price of the premium or this policy.

F. Equal Access and Opportunity

CSULB has a professional, cultural, and ethical commitment to provide a climate that enables students to realize their potential for excellence and that nurtures academic growth and professional development. The university takes pride in the diversity of its student body and employees, and affirms that this diversity enriches the work and learning environment of the campus. For this reason, the recognition of diversity in our university community extends beyond the limits established by federal or state laws or regulations.

In addition to fully meeting its obligations of nondiscrimination under federal and state law, CSULB is committed to creating a community in which a diverse population can learn, live, and work. Moreover, the atmosphere shall be one of tolerance, civility, and respect for the rights and sensibilities of each individual, without regard to professional rank, employment status, economic status, ethnic background, political views, or other personal characteristics or beliefs.

The university also takes seriously its responsibility to ensure equal educational opportunities for all students, including students with disabilities. This responsibility is based on Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and on Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, which are enforced by the U.S. School of Education, Office for Civil Rights.

California State University, Long Beach, affirms the equal worth of every individual and of distinct groups of people, and fosters fair and equal treatment and access for all members of the university community. Therefore, the university is committed to the principles of equal opportunity in education and employment, to policies and practices that ensure equal opportunity and consideration, and to the protection of civil rights.

It is the policy of California State University, Long Beach, to provide programs, services, and benefits, including employment, without regard to race, religion, color, ancestry, ethnicity, gender/gender identity, marital status, pregnancy, national origin, age, mental or physical disability, sexual orientation, disabled veterans' status, Vietnam-era or other covered veteran status. (See: <http://opm.gov/veterans/html/vgmedal2.htm>).

Reasonable accommodation to disability is considered a means of establishing equal opportunity. Retaliation for exercising one's right to protection from discrimination and/or harassment, or for participating in the investigation of a complaint, will not be tolerated.

1. CSULB Office of Equity and Diversity

CSULB has an Office of Equity and Diversity that addresses issues of equal access and freedom from discrimination, harassment, and retaliation. The office is located in the University Student Union, Room 301. The telephone number is 562.985.8256.

Comprehensive information about this office, as well as how to file a complaint, may be found on CSULB's Office of Equity and Diversity Web site. The link to reach their homepage is: www.csulb.edu/depts/oed

The link for complaint resolutions is: www.csulb.edu/depts/oed/policies/polst-r6.htm

The link for discrimination information is: www.csulb.edu/depts/oed/policies/polst-r3.htm

Students who believe that they are the subject of harassment in their fieldwork settings should notify their respective field instructors and/or seminar instructor/liaisons immediately. The liaisons will consult the Director of Field Education. If the fieldwork agency has a specifically designated individual or office to address these issues, the student should also notify that person or office. The student is strongly encouraged to notify agency personnel. The Director of Field Education will notify the Director and immediate attention will be given to the report.

Based upon the exploration or investigation of this matter, the School shall ensure that that the student is safe and free from harassment. The student will be referred to the university's Office of Equity and Diversity. The university's Director of Equity and Diversity is the designated campus coordinator for equal employment opportunity, affirmative action, and civil rights under state and federal law.

Students following the above procedures are in no way prohibited from pursuing other options, such as bringing the matter to the attention of any of the individuals or offices designated by the university policy. No student intern will be subject to restraint, interference, or retaliation for seeking information about harassment or filing a harassment complaint. (See Contact List at: www.csulb.edu/depts/oed/resources/res-r3-2.htm).

2. CSULB Office of Disabled Student Services

Schools, colleges, universities, and other educational institutions have a responsibility to ensure equal educational opportunities for all students, including students with disabilities. This responsibility is based on Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and on Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, which are enforced by the U.S. School of Education, Office for Civil Rights.

The Office of Disabled Student Services is located in Room 270 of Brotman Hall. Their telephone number is 562.985.5401. The link to the students with disabilities Web site is: www.csulb.edu.depts/oed/resources/pubs5e.htm

Field Education courses include their syllabi statements regarding accommodation, such as: "Students who need an accommodation due to a disability should notify the instructor as soon as possible so that appropriate arrangements can be made. Students who need an accommodation must be registered with the Office of Disabled Student Services."

II. FIELDWORK STRUCTURE

A. Fieldwork Seminars

1. Overview and Objectives

a. Fieldwork Seminar Overview

The fieldwork seminar is designed to provide students with the opportunity for discussion and critical analysis of fieldwork focused on:

- Understanding the philosophy, ethics, and value base of the profession
- Sensitization to the multicultural/cross-cultural perspective
- Addressing possible counter-transference dynamics
- Integrating field experiences and theoretical material learned in the classroom
- Sharing concerns, problem-solving, and professional growth

b. Fieldwork Seminar Objectives

Seminar objectives are to:

- Provide a basis for a conceptual analysis of each student's agency practice experiences
- Assist students in achieving integration of classroom learning with direct experience of fieldwork in the application of social work practice.
- Encourage students to examine their own values, attitudes, and behaviors in order to increase their competence as professionals and to understand the impact on their professional role
- Serve as a professional support group for the discussion and resolution of concerns and educational difficulties, and for the sharing of successes in professional growth
- Provide an opportunity for students to participate in a group and, therefore, to learn to understand the group process, as well as their own behavior within a group
- Incorporate issues and concerns related to all persons in society, as well as related to ethnicity, gender, age, sexual orientation, spirituality, and economic challenges, including poverty
- Assist students in examining and integrating personal and professional values and ethics, and to understand how these impact the client system
- Assist students in assimilating their knowledge and practice application around diverse cultural and ethnic issues, including racism, oppressed groups, sexism, sexual orientation, and ageism
- Prepare students with the practical skills needed to enter the job market as beginning, professionally educated social work practitioners

2. Fieldwork Seminar Structure

ADV students, as part of their intensive Summer Bridge model, participate in a field Seminar. At the successful completion of the Summer Bridge model, ADV students will be assigned to a second-year seminar that meets every other week.

First-year students will meet weekly. Second-year students will be assigned to new seminars, which meet every other week. Students from both concentrations will meet together, thus affording them the opportunity to learn of experiences and problems facing individuals, families, and groups across the life span.

First-Year DE students meet in weekly seminars during the 12 weeks of both sessions, and will be visited at least once by their liaisons. Field seminars continue for the entire fieldwork period. Hours spent in the field seminar are in addition to the required 500 internship hours. Second-year DE students meet every other week in their seminars.

3. Attendance and Accountability

Attendance in each field seminar is required. As with other classes, students are expected to attend all seminar sessions. Students are accountable to each other as well as to the seminar instructor/liaison. This is because the absence of one member from a group typically affects the group's cohesion and the effectiveness of the group process.

In accordance with the course syllabi, when students must miss a class, they are expected to notify the seminar instructor/liaison as soon as they are aware of some special circumstance that precludes their attending the seminar (or as soon as possible thereafter, in case of an emergency).

When a second absence occurs, students are required to complete an assignment given by the seminar instructors/liaisons. This assignment must be completed by the end of the semester in which it is given, to avoid receiving a grade of INCOMPLETE.

An INCOMPLETE grade in seminar must be cleared from the record. Any assignment for the first semester must be completed prior to the beginning of the second semester because of prerequisite policy.

4. Seminar Content and Assignments

Seminar instructor/liaisons are responsible for the development of written and/or oral assignments for students in their respective Field Education seminars. Students are given a course syllabus at the beginning of the academic year to reflect the goals and assignments of the seminar. Written seminar assignments include a weekly journal reflecting the experiences, professional growth, and development occurring during the fieldwork seminar. Additional written assignments may be required.

Fieldwork seminars cover a variety of topics, both generalist and specific, and follow the "beginnings, middles, and endings" theme. Some content areas are raised in each semester, with a different and more complex focus in the later semesters, building upon previously obtained knowledge and skills.

5. Grading

The "CREDIT/NO CREDIT" system of grading applies to fieldwork/seminar courses SW 596 and SW 680. The liaison (who is the seminar instructor) makes the determination of the fieldwork grade based upon three criteria:

- Student performance, attendance, and participation in fieldwork seminar
- Completion of required assignments for fieldwork and seminar
- Student performance in the internship, as reflected in the written evaluations by the field instructor, and any meetings with student, field instructor, and liaison/seminar instructor

Failure to perform satisfactorily in any of the three areas may result in a grade of NO CREDIT. (See: Learning Agreement and Comprehensive Skills Evaluation and Grading. See: Student Responsibilities. See: Resolution of Fieldwork Problems.)

An INCOMPLETE (I) grade signifies that a portion of the required coursework, normally not more than one-third, has not been completed and evaluated in the prescribed time period, but there is still a possibility of earning credit for the course.

The liaison shall state the conditions for removal of the INCOMPLETE grade in writing. A final grade is assigned when the course requirements have been completed and evaluated.

If a grade of INCOMPLETE is given, the remaining course requirements must be completed prior to the next period (semester) of fieldwork. The completion date for course requirements will be indicated on the INCOMPLETE grade form prepared by the liaison.

A grade of NO CREDIT in fieldwork might result in a student not being allowed to continue in the MSW program, as successful completion of fieldwork is a requirement for continuation.

B. Placement Procedures

1. First-Year Fieldwork

A required fieldwork orientation meeting is held to provide students with important information regarding field internships and to explain the placement procedures. Presentations are scheduled for days, evenings, and Saturdays. Students must attend one of the presentations.

All students complete a Graduate Fieldwork Application form prior to entering fieldwork. A member of the field faculty interviews each student in order to review the student's background experiences, concentration, educational and learning needs, and geographical or other special considerations.

Field faculty designate a fieldwork site for the student, and the student completes a pre-placement interview with the prospective field instructor prior to the beginning of the internship period. Successful completion of the pre-placement interview finalizes the internship. Field instructors will complete a "confirmation form" for the student, including the days and hours of field internship, and will return the form to the student's CYF or OAF Field Coordinator.

A Fieldwork Lab is held at the beginning of the first fieldwork internship. Attendance is required before beginning field assignments as there is an emphasis on both experiential learning and fieldwork procedures. Students who are unable to attend due to emergencies must complete an assignment that indicates they understand the material that was covered in the lab.

2. Advanced Standing Fieldwork

- The ADV program is open to students who have completed their Bachelor of Social Work degree within the past five years, and who have maintained a minimum GPA of 3.0 in their undergraduate program.
- Students must complete a ten-week intensive Summer Bridge program in order to bridge their learning from the undergraduate to the graduate level, including learning in Technology, Practice, Policy, Research, Human Behavior, and Field Education.
- Summer Bridge Field Education is a ten-week course that includes eight hours of pre-placement field lab, 160 hours (16 hours per week) of internship in a qualified agency, as well as an on-campus field seminar, and other required assignments and evaluations.
- When students satisfactorily complete the Field Education Summer Bridge requirements (and the other core-content bridge modules), they will be Advanced to Candidacy and enter the second year of the two-year MSW program.
- The entire program is completed within 12 calendar months.

3. Second-Year Fieldwork

A fieldwork orientation is held during the fall semester while students are in their first-year field placement to discuss placement procedures for the second year of field. Orientations are scheduled for day, evening, and Saturday times, and students are responsible for attending one of these sessions. Students complete a Graduate Fieldwork Application form that must be submitted to the CYF or OAF Field Coordinator.

Students each receive the names of two agency options, reflecting the students' individual learning needs, areas of interest, and preferences (such as location). They are given the names of the contact persons at the identified agencies and are must arrange and complete both internship interviews. Feedback is elicited from both students and prospective field instructors, indicating acceptable and unacceptable matches.

Students are informed of their internship assignment after their CYF or OAF Field Coordinator has made the final selection. Students are required to notify field instructors at the agencies where they will not be placed, thanking the field instructors for their consideration and informing those field instructors that another agency has been selected for them. This notification must be made by students by telephone within one week of having received their internship letters.

4. Inability to Match Students with Fieldwork Internships

a. First-Year Students

If an agency to which a student was referred for an internship does not accept the student, the respective CYF or OAF Field Coordinator, or DE Site Coordinator, will meet with that student to discuss the issues. Such students will be assigned to a second agency, as available and appropriate, for consideration. Due to decreasing availability of appropriate field placements, no more than two agencies will be assigned to each student. When an agency cannot accept students due to reasons that are agency-related, i.e., not having available field instructors, the student will be assigned to an additional agency.

If the second agency does not accept the student, fieldwork courses for that academic year will have to be deferred. The respective Coordinators will inform the Director of Field Education, who will refer these students to the School's Associate Director for advising.

When a student defers field to the following academic year, upon their return they will be assigned to a new agency. If the agency does not accept the student, they will be assigned to a second agency. If the second agency does not accept the student, the student will be dismissed from the program.

b. Second-Year Students

If two agencies do not accept the student, the respective Coordinators will refer students to third agencies, as available. The respective Coordinators will meet with students in these circumstances to discuss the issues.

When students are not selected by third agencies, fieldwork courses for that academic year will have to be deferred. The respective Coordinators will inform the Director of Field Education, who will refer these students to the School's Associate Director for advising. When an agency cannot accept students due to reasons that are agency-related, i.e., not having available field instructors, the student will be assigned to an additional agency.

When a student defers field to the following academic year, upon their return they will be assigned to two agencies. If both agencies do not accept the student, the student will be dismissed from the program.

5. Use of Agency of Employment as a Fieldwork Site

Students employed in social service agencies may request evaluation of their agencies for suitability as a site for their second-year internship. They must complete the required "Proposal to Utilize Agency of Employment as a Fieldwork Site" form, which is available on the School's website.

This written proposal must describe the difference between employment activities and fieldwork activities. It must be signed by the student, prospective agency field instructor, and current supervisor. The form requesting the use of an employment site for fieldwork must be submitted to the respective Field Coordinator by the posted spring deadline prior to second-year field.

A member of the field faculty will conduct a meeting or telephone conference call with the involved individuals and must approve the proposed plan. The agency must be able to meet established criteria to assure the educational focus of fieldwork, to provide new and challenging experiences to the student, and to maximize learning opportunities. To meet the requirements of an educationally based fieldwork experience, the agency must meet all of the following criteria:

- The agency must be able to provide experiences for the student during fieldwork hours that are different from normal work activities and duties.
- There must be a qualified field instructor who is different from the line supervisor. The field instructor must possess an MSW degree from an accredited school of social work and have at least two years of post-master's experience.
- The agency must assure release time required for field instructor to provide necessary field instruction and supervision, and to attend Field Instructor Trainings, if needed.
- The assignments proposed for fieldwork must be educationally focused and meet the university's criteria.
- The assigned hours for fieldwork must be completed in a different program area or unit of the agency, allowing for an actual physical separation of employment and fieldwork activities.
- Students must have experience with a different client population, program area, or service area during the fieldwork hours.
- Fieldwork activities must coincide with students' CYF or OAF concentration area. A written fieldwork agreement must be prepared, outlining the criteria for the fieldwork experience, to be signed by the student, field instructor, and current supervisor, and be approved by the CYF or OAF Field Coordinator, or DE Site Coordinator.

11. Administrative Support Staff

Four administrative support staff work with the Field Education program, including the BASW and MSW programs, the Distance Education program, the CalSWEC–Child Welfare and CalSWEC–Mental Health programs, and all the projects that have a fieldwork component. They assist with various trainings and events on and off campus, and serve as the conduit for the daily Faculty-On-Duty (FOD). (See: Emergency Contact/Faculty-On-Duty.)

They process student stipends and expense reimbursements; generate correspondence, notices, and materials required for meetings, orientations, and trainings. They also maintain the databases and hard-copy files for approximately 500 students in internships, including nearly 100 undergraduate students, and the hundreds of agencies that affiliate with the School in support of social work education.

D. Fieldwork Agencies

1. Philosophy

Southern California is well-resourced with social work education programs on undergraduate, graduate, and doctoral levels. However, for students pursuing BASW and MSW degrees, when 500 hours of field education are required annually (CSWE standards), there is an increasing challenge to find and keep agencies that: (a) have staff with the requisite social work degrees to supervise interns, and (b) are willing, able, and have the resources to invest in intern education while fulfilling their respective missions.

Field faculty work collaboratively with their community-based partners to document that students have fulfilled their Learning Agreements, and that comprehensive skills have been evaluated—by the student, the field instructor, and the school based liaison. These outcomes must be met without compromising client services.

2. Recruitment

It is essential to have a well-articulated, thoughtful approach to ensuring the needed number of quality internships. Our School has a strategy that is conceptualized as "development and support." This approach is based on the premise that quality agencies and field instructors, with some exceptions, need both Field Education development and School support.

To ensure their commitment to the School, they need to be supported with individual attention in the form of visits from liaisons or in group activities, such as field instructor orientation, training, and appreciation events. The School has a written plan aimed at development, which includes a recruitment component, and support.

The School understands that we cannot be an accredited social work educational program without our excellent community-based agencies. We respect that they work with us on a voluntary basis, and that they accept our students in support of social work education in general, and our School, specifically.

3. Assessment and Selection

The community agencies that participate in fieldwork must be of excellent quality, both in the services they provide and the staff that they employ. The range of available internship sites is crucial to the successful operation of the fieldwork program.

When an agency is identified for potential collaboration—either by outreach on the part of School faculty or by the agency initiating the contact—an on-site meeting is arranged. Field faculty are geographically assigned to conduct agency assessments.

Assessments, based on a standard form, include the agency's willingness, ability, and resources to provide exposure to diverse client/population/service delivery systems, with an emphasis on cultural and ethnic diversity, oppressed groups, and women. The agency should provide a comprehensive range of learning experiences for students. Essential to a successful field teaching site is the ability to accommodate students, including adequate and appropriate space, equipment, support staff, and caseload numbers. The agency must have a field instructor with an MSW degree who is willing and able to provide a minimum of one hour per week for student supervision.

Agencies are evaluated at the end of each internship period by both the student and the liaison. Areas of evaluation will include the agency's ability to provide a comprehensive educational experience, the perceived strengths and needs of the setting, the quality of the instructional abilities of the field instructor, and the overall impression of the agency.

4. Agency Responsibilities

Community agencies that wish to affiliate with our School voluntarily fulfill the following responsibilities:

- Accept and cooperate with university and School policies and guidelines
- Accept and evidence commitment to the educational objectives inherent in the School's fieldwork curriculum
- Provide appropriate office space, telephone access, supplies, and other necessary materials to enable a student to function effectively
- Designate qualified field instructors and preceptors, as appropriate, and modify the schedules of any employee selected to assure that adequate time is available for teaching and student supervision activities, including meetings and/or training sessions at the university
- Provide any needed assistance to the field instructor and preceptor, as appropriate, in developing appropriate learning experiences within the agency
- Adhere to policies and practices reflecting nondiscrimination toward clients, staff, and students
- Inform the School of any change in administration of their agencies that impacts the internship program
- Complete an Affiliation Agreement with the university's Office of Purchasing
- Commit to the School's philosophy and mission in the training of social work professionals
- Have agency standards and a philosophy that is acceptable and respected within the practice community and by the university
- Provide staff development and training opportunities

E. Field Instructors

1. Responsibilities

Essential to the success of a fieldwork program is the selection of qualified and experienced field instructors. They have an essential role in both the personal and professional development of students, providing them with learning experiences and an introduction to social work practice within the agency setting, while also serving as professional role models. Field instructors must be able, willing, and have the resources to:

- Provide an educationally focused fieldwork experience in accordance with the policies and procedures of the School of Social Work
- Provide an agency orientation to the student at the beginning of the internship period, to include safety procedures

- Request that their students bring them copies of the course outlines and assignments for each course at the beginning of each semester (this allows the field instructor to pace learning experiences to classroom content, and to assist the student with integrating their practice activities into their academic learning)
- Develop a Learning Agreement in conjunction with the student
- Provide an educationally focused experience that includes objectives and activities listed in the Learning Agreement
- Maintain professional backup availability to the student
- Assure that the student receives and maintains a sufficient number and variety of appropriate cases/assignments (keeping in mind that in a direct practice internship, students should spend 50 percent of their time in direct client contact)
- Support the requirement of Educationally Based Recordings (which should be read, commented upon in writing, and returned to students in a timely manner)
- Complete and submit written evaluations at the mid-point and end of each semester by the specified date on the Fieldwork Calendar, outlining student progress and further learning needs and goals.
- Maintain regular communication with the assigned liaison for consultation and notify the liaison immediately if there are areas of concern, including changes in the agency that may impact the fieldwork experience
- Meet with the liaison and the student during the internship period to assess student progress and to coordinate learning experiences
- Provide a minimum of one hour per week of individual supervision for each student, and be available for additional consultation and supervision, as needed
- Complete series of new Field Instructor Trainings, orientations, and other field-related activities throughout the year
- Be a role model for students by maintaining confidentiality and setting appropriate and culturally sensitive professional boundaries
- Notify liaison of any changes in the student's schedule, including extended time agreed to at the end of the field period
- Read the Fieldwork Manual which can be accessed on the school's website.

2. Selection

Field instructors—the primary role models and teachers for social work interns in the field—are selected based on the following factors, with any exceptions made on a case-by-case basis by the Director of Field Education, in collaboration with field faculty colleagues. Field instructors must:

- Hold an MSW from an accredited School of Social Work
- Have at least two years of post-master's experience
- Have a well-integrated knowledge and understanding of the program area in which the student will be located and for which the field instructor will provide supervision
- Have both an interest and a demonstrated skill in teaching
- Be willing and available to participate in School of Social Work activities, such as orientation and training sessions
- Meet, as needed, with liaisons for regular semester site visits as well as to address fieldwork problems that may arise (must also be able to meet on campus, as needed, for special circumstances)
- Commit to being available for the entire fieldwork period

- Commit to being available during the hours in which students are in internship within the agency
- Be able to adjust their own workload to permit regular and adequate time for student instruction
- Have knowledge in the concentration area of CYF or OAF, corresponding to students placed with them within their agency
- Be willing and able to model the six major principles of the National Association of Social Workers (NASW) Code of Ethics: being competent, showing dignity, respecting the importance of human relationships, having integrity, providing service, and advocating for social justice (See NASW Web site: www.socialworkers.org)

3. Orientation and Training

A Field Instructor Orientation is held at the beginning of each academic year, for both new and returning field instructors. This event provides an opportunity to meet with the Director of the School, faculty, and staff to learn of new developments in the School of Social Work. Equally important, this orientation provides the opportunity to network with other field instructors and social work educators, with small groups focusing on child welfare, older adults, school social work, and mental health.

The School provides a series of mandatory trainings for all new field instructors. These trainings provide an opportunity for experienced practitioners to further their skills in the area of field instruction and supervision, as well as a forum for the exchange of practice skills and areas of expertise. The training also exposes field instructors to the philosophy and operation of the School of Social Work.

Field Instructor Training workshops (18 hours) are provided during the Academic Year and at DE sites. Six continuing education units (CEUs) are offered each session, for participants who request them. Additional seminars on a variety of field topics are also offered to field instructors. Topics covered include the following issues:

- Being a practitioner and an educator
- Teaching students as adult learners
- Developing the Learning Agreement
- Working with Educationally Based Recordings
- Providing learning assignments and case selection
- Using the Interim Progress Reports
- Using the Comprehensive Skills Evaluation
- Integrating classroom theory into practice
- Emphasizing multicultural social work practice
- Working with special-needs students
- Working with challenging students
- Maintaining boundaries and addressing ethical issues
- Terminating with students
- Helping students terminate with clients

At the end of each year, a special Field Instructor Appreciation Day is held for all field instructors to recognize their efforts and offer continuing education. Both macro and micro topics are featured, led by a School faculty member with particular expertise. The School also invites its field instructors to participate in an annual Field Instructors

Symposium, in conjunction with other schools and departments of social work in the greater Los Angeles area.

4. Preceptors

Some agencies may choose to use preceptors to help provide a broad learning experience for students. Preceptors are other staff members in the agency who are part of the agency's service-delivery team, including MSWs, LCSWs, and individuals from other disciplines. Preceptors are selected to provide a specific learning experience or opportunity for the student.

Preceptors receive information about the curriculum objectives for the students, the specific learning objectives that they will be providing to students, and a clear understanding of their participation in the evaluation process. The designated field instructors maintain overall responsibility for students' internship experiences, and are accountable for the required evaluations, meetings with liaisons, etc.

Preceptors are encouraged to attend the Preceptor Training that is offered on campus. Field Instructors are encouraged to attend. Preceptors are a valued component of the School's fieldwork program.

III. FIELDWORK EXPECTATIONS, REQUIREMENTS, AND GRADING

Fieldwork is designed to provide all students with exposure to a full range of social work practice assessment and intervention activities, from a multicultural generalist perspective. The array of activities listed on the Learning Agreement describes the fully array of a comprehensive field experience. Additionally, students are expected to have the broadest range of diversity in their case assignments. Expectations for fieldwork are consistent for the Academic Year, and ADV, as well as in the DE sites, with appropriate differences in the time frames for activity assignments, the number and nature of case assignments, and the CYF and OAF concentrations.

A Fieldwork Calendar is made available on the School's website, identifying timelines for various activities during that period, including orientation, case assignments, development of the Learning Agreement, completion of student performance evaluations, and termination.

The guidelines for fieldwork experience assignments and caseload expectations have been developed in conjunction with other academic sequences, and to also highlight the anticipated differences in skill level between first-year and second-year fieldwork students.

A. First-Year Expectations

First-year fieldwork internships provide students with the opportunity to develop a foundation of skills fundamental to social work practice. These basic skills include a range of treatment issues and theoretical models, and a range of diversity of cases. While fieldwork experiences should include both direct and indirect service opportunities, the primary focus is on direct practice. First-year foundation and practice coursework assignments must address the following expectations so that students:

- Receive, within the first week of internship, an orientation to the agency, as well as an orientation to the specific program or service areas where the student is completing fieldwork hours.
- Receive an initial caseload assignment, according to the Fieldwork Calendar. If caseload assignments cannot be made according to this timetable, the field instructor should contact the liaison to discuss the circumstances and plan accordingly.
- Have, throughout their internship semesters, a variety of experiences that include information and referral, case management, community linkage, advocacy, collaboration, assessment, treatment planning, crisis intervention, and treatment.
- Have a minimum of 50 percent of fieldwork hours in direct practice activities. This should include individuals, couples and families, as well as case conferences and case presentations.
- Have, throughout their internship semesters, experience with indirect service activities, such as participation in agency and interagency meetings, outreach programs, community advocacy, visits to community resources, etc.
- Participate in a group experience. If a group experience is not available within the agency, the field instructor should consult with the liaison about the possibility of developing a group experience at a related facility within the local community, which could then be integrated into the total fieldwork experience. Group experiences might include an educationally focused group, such as a parenting class, a therapeutically focused group, a socialization group, or a discussion group. Students should have an active role in the group beyond simple observation.

B. Second-Year Expectations

1. Direct Practice Focus

During the second year of fieldwork, students build on the foundation of skills achieved during their first year. Students are expected to handle a larger volume of cases or assignments, develop an increased insight and understanding of agency and/or client systems and skills, and begin to practice independently. Second-year fieldwork experience must address the following expectations so that students:

- Receive, within the first week of internship, an orientation to the agency, as well as an orientation to the specific program or service areas where the student is completing fieldwork hours.
- Receive an initial caseload assignment, according to the Fieldwork Calendar.
- If caseload assignments cannot be made according to this timetable, the field instructor should contact the liaison to discuss the circumstances and plan accordingly.
- Have, throughout their internship semesters, a variety of experiences that include information and referral, case management, community linkage, advocacy, collaboration, assessment, treatment planning, crisis intervention, and treatment.
- Have a minimum of 50 percent of fieldwork hours in direct practice activities. This should include individuals, couples and families, as well as case conferences and case presentations.
- For students who request a primarily administrative internship, a minimum of 50 percent of the students' time must be spent in administrative, program planning, and program development and/or evaluation.
- Have experience with indirect service activities, such as participation in agency and interagency meetings, outreach programs, community advocacy, program development and/or evaluation, and other appropriate learning opportunities.
- Participate in a group experience. If a group experience is not available within the agency, the field instructor should consult with the liaison about the possibility of developing a group experience at a related facility within the local community which could then be integrated into the total fieldwork experience. Group experiences might include an educationally focused group, such as a parenting class, a therapeutically focused group, a socialization group, or a discussion group. Students should have an active role in the group beyond simple observation.

2. Administrative Focus

Students in administratively focused internships should experience a full range of administration, planning, program development/evaluation and community practice experiences. They are expected to develop the ability to transfer foundation practice skills into the administrative arena. While students may be involved in some direct practice or service delivery, the primary focus is on administration, planning, and program development/evaluation. Also, administrative internships may entail community practice experiences, including community organization, community building, and social planning activities.

Within the first two weeks of internship, students should receive an orientation to the agency, including organizational structure, mission, boundaries, funding auspices, staffing patterns, relationship to surrounding community, and the role and fit of the student intern into the respective agency's operation.

Students are expected to develop an understanding and application of skills in program development, program management, and other administrative and/or supervision areas. Administrative activities may allow students to:

- Participate in a variety of committee, taskforce, and program-planning activities available within the agency
- Serve as an agency representative on community-, county-, or state-level boards or committees related to the services provided by the fieldwork agency
- Participate in grant-writing, budgeting, or other financial planning activities of the agency
- Help with the analysis of agency policies and programs to assess service delivery, administrative structure, etc.
- Participate in agency activities relating to personnel management functions, program planning, program evaluation, staff development, etc.
- Assume primary responsibility for the development and implementation of a special project during the internship period, with the selection of the project being a mutual process between the student and field instructor
- Participate in community-based or action research, i.e., data collection, instrument/methodology design, data analysis

C. Advanced Standing Expectations

Students in the ADV program must experience activities that enable them to:

- Demonstrate the integration of classroom learning with direct practice
- Analyze their own values, attitudes, and behaviors to enhance their competence as professionals working with diverse individuals and groups
- Identify strategies to resolve educational and professional challenges in the field
- Demonstrate support of colleagues as they share fieldwork concerns and successes
- Analyze issues that arise during internship, specifically as they impact services in the students' area of concentration, and as they relate to social work roles, agency mission
- Complete a Self-Assessment and Evaluation Review as a reflection of their accomplishments during the Summer Bridge, defining their professional and personal growth in core areas
- Perform satisfactorily on the Summer Bridge Interim Progress Report and the Bridge Final Evaluation
- Participate in a one-day field lab in preparation for fieldwork and the seminar
- Complete 160 hours of field internship

D. Learning Agreement/Orientation Checklist/Comprehensive Skills Evaluation

The Learning Agreement/Orientation Checklist and Comprehensive Skills Evaluation have been updated by the Inter-University Consortium of Social Work Programs in Southern California. The Learning Agreement has been incorporated into the new Comprehensive Skills Evaluation which reflects the 10 new Educational Policy and Accreditation Standards (EPAS) delineated by the Council on Social Work Education in 2008. The Learning Agreement section of the new tool provides students with the opportunity to participate in planning their individual field educational experience by identifying the plan for specific learning activities which will allow them the opportunity to develop skills in each of the ten competency areas; thus, providing a link between educational experience planning and evaluation. The completed Learning Agreement along with the Orientation Checklist must be signed by the student and field instructor, and submitted to the liaison at a designated date early in the first semester. The Comprehensive Skills Evaluation is completed by the field instructor at the end of each semester and submitted to the liaison.

E. Educationally Based Recording Requirements

The use of Educationally Based Recordings (EBRs) is a Field Education course requirement, and its format is another tool developed by the Los Angeles Inter-University Consortium. EBRs can be completed in a variety of styles and formats. (See: Forms.) The most common type of recording is the Process Recording, a verbatim recording of all events that took place in an interview/interaction, both verbal and nonverbal. Process Recordings should also include a clear statement of the purpose of the interview, the student's impressions and assessment of the interview, and plans for the next session.

Some formats provide a basic structure and outline of topic areas or a summary of the interview or interaction. Other models are more suited to meetings or group situations. Confidentiality must be preserved at all times. No surnames, nor any identifying information, may be written in these documents.

The purpose of the EBR is to provide the student an opportunity to rethink the interview, group, or meeting, focusing on remembering content, analyzing various interventions, and developing an understanding of their experiences and perceptions. This process allows the student to reflect upon transference and counter-transference issues. As a supervisory tool, the EBR provides a picture of the student's interviewing styles, and is a reflection of the student's ability to integrate knowledge and theory with practice skills.

Students complete EBRs during internship hours. They should be allowed one hour to complete each recording. Educationally Based Recordings are utilized in the supervisory sessions with the field instructor. The student and field instructor develop a system whereby the field instructor will have a copy of the recording prior to the supervisory session to enable the field instructor to review the document, make written comments, and prepare for discussion. The liaison will review the recordings during the scheduled agency site visit.

Educationally Based Recordings do not take the place of, nor should they be used as, agency documentation. They are learning tools to be used for supervisory purposes only, and are never placed in agency charts. Students are responsible for any documentation that is required by the agency itself for its own records and files. One EBR is required per week for all AY and ADV students.

F. Interim Progress Report

The Interim Progress Report is another tool developed by the Inter-University Consortium. It is the equivalent of a mid-term exam in an academic course. (See: Forms.) It provides the opportunity for students to be evaluated halfway through the semester, so strengths can be identified and areas for improvement can be addressed. The purpose of this report is to:

- Serve as a mid-term evaluation for Field Education courses SW 596A/B, SW 680A/B and Summer Bridge

- Document student progress in the fieldwork agency
- Allow the field instructor to alert the field liaison of any problem areas that may require early intervention
- Facilitate classroom and internship discussions that encourage learning and self-awareness

G. Grading

The university uses a CREDIT/NO CREDIT grading system for fieldwork. Students are evaluated on a continuous basis throughout the fieldwork period. This process requires mutual participation, with contributions from the principal parties: student, field instructor, and seminar instructor/liaison. The field instructors and seminar instructors/liasons are charged with the responsibility of determining the extent to which their students have met the criteria previously established for fieldwork performance. Responsibility for the final grade assignment (CREDIT/NO CREDIT) rests with the liaison/seminar instructor. Students must receive a grade of CREDIT in order to remain in the program. Students who receive a grade of NO CREDIT will be dismissed from the program.

For each evaluation period, a face sheet is included as part of the evaluation tool. This sheet provides basic identifying information about the student, field instructor, and agency, and is signed by the student, field instructor, and seminar instructor/liaison. The student's signature does not necessarily signify agreement with the evaluation; it simply indicates that the student has read it. Students may write an addendum, if they wish.

H. Student Commitments

Our School joins with other social work education programs in California, both public and private, whose fieldwork manuals also reflect that students who choose a career in social work are making a commitment to become part of a noble profession established nearly two centuries ago. With a profession based on humanitarian ideals and emphasizing service to oppressed groups, students are expected to learn how to place the needs of others first, and to demonstrate their willingness and ability to do so.

While students are fulfilling their fieldwork responsibilities at their respective agencies, they must be committed to representing the School while serving their agencies' clients. Both in the classroom and in fieldwork, students are expected to uphold the six major principles of the National Association of Social Workers (NASW) Code of Ethics: being competent; showing dignity, respecting the importance of human relationships, having integrity, providing service, and advocating for social justice (www.socialworkers.org).

While in the classroom and in field seminar, students should focus on their individual and even personal learning needs and challenges. In fact, students are encouraged to do so in order to obtain faculty and peer guidance and support. However, once students pass through the door of their respective fieldwork agencies, they must respect that the first priorities of their agencies are to their clients.

Students in the process of achieving their Master of Social Work degree at CSULB must make specific commitments. Before starting the program, students signed an Admissions Agreement committing to the following understandings:

- That their fieldwork internship would be specific to their OAF or CYF concentration

- That they will be available for fieldwork approximately between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m., typically Monday through Friday
- That many agencies require security background investigations, fingerprint checks, random drug screens, and perhaps physical exams, TB tests, and immunization verification
- That they will accept fieldwork assignments made by the faculty
- That, if the School is unable to match a student with a fieldwork site, the student may need to defer fieldwork
- That they will maintain professional conduct in fieldwork, in accordance with the six major principles of the NASW Code of Ethics

In addition, students enrolled in the Field Education courses must be committed to:

- Accepting and abiding by the policies and guidelines established by the School
- Maintaining their student status and not being hired as an employee during the time they are in the fieldwork agency as an intern; however, students may receive a stipend, if one is available
- Accepting and abiding by the policies and guidelines established by their respective fieldwork agencies, e.g., hours of operation, documentation requirements, participation in required meetings, upholding agency policies on confidentiality, and the protection of agency, staff, and client rights, etc. (this may include signing their agencies' policy manuals in order to have the privilege of serving those agencies' clients)
- Providing field instructors (and preceptors, as appropriate) with copies of course outlines and reading requirements for each course at the beginning of each semester to allow the field instructors to pace learning experiences to classroom content, and to assist students in integrating their practice activities with their academic learning
- Participating actively in the educational experience of fieldwork by developing the Learning Agreement in conjunction with the field instructor, and by preparing and participating in weekly supervision conferences, participating in fieldwork seminar meetings, and participating in evaluation conferences with field instructor and liaison
- Keeping an accurate record of hours in fieldwork internship
- Maintaining an appearance and behavior that is consistent with social work standards and agency practice, values, and ethics, to be carried through in all interactions with clients, colleagues, and the community
- Following individual agency protocols regarding the use of that agency's telephone, e-mail, and/or Internet systems for personal use
- Providing for continuity of client services and treatment during university holiday periods, keeping to the obligations and values inherent in professional social work practice
- Discussing in advance with the field instructor and liaison the scheduling of client visits and fieldwork days during university break periods to ensure continuity of care and appropriate services to clients
- Understanding and agreeing that sexual relationships are professionally inappropriate when they occur between members of the teaching staff or other agency staff and students (Sexual relationships are never acceptable between students and agency clients as a professional power differential exists in these situations in terms of the influence and authority which one individual can exercise over the other. This type of relationship presents both professional and ethical concerns related to the NASW Code of Ethics.)

IV. RESOLUTION OF FIELDWORK PROBLEMS

A. Problem Identification

The School of Social Work is committed to helping students maximize their learning opportunities and experiences in an educational internship. Potential challenges and demonstrated difficulties, both personal and educational, should be identified and acted upon as early as possible to allow corrective action and resolution. Every effort will be made to ensure that all students' rights to due process are protected.

Fieldwork programs in California, both public and private, typically define student problems as:

- Being unable to accept the role of learner
- Being unable or unwilling to carry out student responsibilities
- Having attitudinal, ethical, and/or behavioral considerations that make faculty and field instructors question the student's "fit" with the profession
- Showing impairment in social functioning—either a discrete single episode or more
- Exhibiting provocative or disruptive behavior that is disturbing to clients, other students, agency staff, or faculty
- Misinterpreting facts
- Lacking insight
- Having withdrawn, flat-affect or volatile, labile behaviors
- Blaming others or external factors for failures and difficulties
- Rationalizing a justification of inappropriate behavior
- Being impaired from alcohol or impaired from substance abuse

Certain behaviors, if documented, may make it impossible, for a fieldwork agency to select and/or keep a student. These behaviors may include:

- Refusing to accept the role of learner
- Disregarding or violating agency policies and/or procedures
- Failing to report previous criminal convictions and/or charges that have not been cleared from the student's criminal record and which may make fieldwork with populations of the student's choice impossible
- Having dual relationships with clients, including sexual activity
- Making physical or verbal threats or exhibiting aggression toward clients, agency staff, other students, faculty
- Participating in any illegal behavior
- Exhibiting sexual harassment behaviors at the fieldwork agency or on campus
- Failing to maintain a grade of CREDIT in fieldwork course
- Rigidity demonstrated by inability to respect and follow an agency's policies, including refusing to sign the agency's Policy Manual
- Being persistently angry or hostile
- Showing a lack of flexibility in attitudes toward ethnicity, age, gender, sexual orientation, religion, physical or mental abilities, or other human diversities such that behavior with clients or in seminar that impinges on the rights of others

- Being unable to allow clients the opportunity to make their own choices and thus experience the consequences of such choices (with appropriate exceptions regarding minors, or in the case of suicidal behaviors, for example)
- Creating imminent danger of harm to clients, other students, or other professionals in the agency, i.e., the student is engaging in practice activities that could result in harm to the client, other students, or to other professionals
- Violating the NASW Code of Ethics, i.e., areas outlined in the NASW Code, including the social worker's conduct and comportment as a social worker, the social worker's ethical responsibility to clients, colleagues, the agency setting, the social work profession, and society
- Breaching confidentiality, i.e., violation of patient privacy, patient rights, and client confidentiality policies, or a violation of confidentiality policies regarding agency information or agency staff/personnel
- Having unexplained absences, i.e., failure to notify field instructor in event of absence, or an extended absence with no notification or prior approval by field instructor and/or liaison
- Having other significant professional issues or ethical concerns, i.e., dual relationships with clients, lying, false misrepresentation of facts, etc.
- Failing to disclose in a timely manner any existing barriers to full and professional accountability in the field placement.

(See CSULB, Office of Counseling and Psychological Services (CAPS) Warning Signs Behaviors)

According to CSULB's Office of Counseling and Psychological Services (CAPS), the police should be called whenever there is concern that students may be in danger of harming themselves or others, or are in any way disruptive or out of control. On campus, this would be the Campus Police at 985-4101. In the community, the fieldwork agencies would follow their own individual protocols, which have been discussed with students in the process of completing the Orientation Checklist. (See: Safety in Fieldwork, Agency Protocols, and Orientation Checklist. See: Forms.)

In any situations deemed urgent, field instructors should contact their respective seminar instructor/liaisons or the Director of Field Education and follow the protocol described above for Faculty-On-Duty.

It should be noted that, effective February 2, 2006, the CSU Chancellor issued Executive Order No. 970, "Student Conduct Procedures" (www.calstate.edu/eo/EO-970.html). This document explains the process by which students are provided with due process. It also provides guidance to campuses on how to address student misconduct. The university's protocol would take precedence over the Field Education Review, but the latter might occur to gain closure on the Field Education experience.

B. Achieving Field Education Outcomes

The above circumstances are unusual. Typically, fieldwork conflicts are far less severe and much more amenable to early interventions. Fieldwork challenges may be in the following categories: (a) students who may not be willing and able, or have the resources to fulfill their educational commitments and achieve the required educational outcomes; (b) field instructors who may not be willing, able, or have the resources to meet their students' educational needs; and (c) unforeseen circumstances, such as an agency no longer be able to serve as an internship site, or a field instructor leaving an agency with no qualified replacement.

In the case of (b) and (c) above, students, their field instructors, and their seminar instructor/liaisons should inform each other as soon as the circumstances are known. The seminar instructor/liaisons meet immediately with the respective CYF or OAF Field Coordinator, or respective DE Site Coordinator, to begin the process of identifying a subsequent fieldwork internship. As discussed in the initial field lab (orientation), hours that students are out of field must still be completed, even if the circumstances are beyond the students' control. Field faculty are aware of this challenge and make every effort to place students as soon as viable fieldwork internship sites are identified.

In the event that an agency decides to dismiss a student, a Field Education Review is held. This review is convened by the Director of Field Education and may include the liaison, the CYF or OAF Field Coordinator (or the DE Coordinator), the field instructor, and the student. The results of this review will determine the student's status and options in the field. If it is the recommendation of the Field Education Review that the student be dismissed from the social work program, the student will be referred to the Associate Director of the School. All procedures and protections of due process will be afforded the student, as outlined in university documents.

In the case of (a) above, the following steps will be followed to help students meet their commitments and achieve their educational outcomes.

STEP 1: STUDENT AND FIELD INSTRUCTOR DISCUSSION

There is a discussion between the student and field instructor to clarify the issue(s), and to identify expectations and strategies for change.

- a. Field instructor must communicate to the student the concerns, issues, and identified obstacles to the student's learning and adequate performance; conversely, a student should learn how to present concerns to the field instructor.
- b. Student and field instructor may identify specific activities and steps that can be taken for resolution.
- c. Field instructor will complete a consultation telephone call with the liaison.
- d. Student may present issues/challenges in field seminar for feedback from peers and seminar instructor/liaison

Possible Outcomes

- a. Identified problems are resolved and student fieldwork internship continues.
- b. Proceed to Step 2 below, as identified problems are not resolved.

STEP 2: FIELD EDUCATION PERFORMANCE CONTRACT

When students have difficulty with professional practice, such as compliance with agency or School of Social Work policies, social work values and ethics, and school academic standards, including the NASW Code of Ethics (which govern social work practice), early intervention is essential. When an area or concern is identified, the student, field instructor, and liaison meet to accomplish the following:

- a. Student or field instructor (or both) communicates the problem(s) to the seminar instructor/liaison.
- b. Student, field instructor, liaison, and (as appropriate) the respective CYF or OAF Field Coordinator or respective DE Site Coordinator, meet to review problems and obstacles, and to identify possible solutions.
- c. During this meeting, the seminar instructor/liaison and/or respective Coordinator should have an opportunity to review evidence of the student's strengths and educational needs in the agency, including feedback from preceptors (as appropriate), recordings, and further case documentation.
- d. A clear statement is made during this meeting of problem areas and remediation steps, expectations for change, and a time frame for remediation.
- e. A Field Education Performance Contract (FEPC) is written by the seminar instructor/liaison in consultation with the respective Coordinator and the Director of Field Education. The contract must be reviewed by the Associate Director to ensure compliance with university policies. The contract lists: the areas needing improvement in relation to any of the six principles of the NASW Code of Ethics; the behaviors that need to change; the expected new outcomes; the role of all parties in helping students achieve those outcomes; and time frames.
- f. A copy is sent to all participants for signature, and each returns their signed copy to the liaison.

Possible Outcomes

- a. Student, field instructor, and liaison follow the Field Education Performance Contract, resulting in satisfactory completion of contract within specified time frame. The FEPC is considered completed.
- b. Extenuating circumstances may result in student being reassigned to a new fieldwork agency. The respective Coordinator will arrange a reassignment, as appropriate, guided by liaison's recommendations. Contract follows the student to the new fieldwork internship.
- c. Student has demonstrated progress, but has not yet completed terms of the Field Education Performance Contract. An agreement is made by all parties to extend contract; it is added to the original contract. The time frame will depend upon skill(s) to be developed. A follow-up evaluation meeting is scheduled with the student, field instructor, seminar instructor/liaison, and, if appropriate, the respective Coordinator.
- d. If the student refuses to participate in the meeting or refuses to sign the contract, the student is referred to the Director of Field Education and the Associate Director. Refusing to sign a Field Education Performance Contract is tantamount to rejecting the student's required and previously committed-to role as a learner. Such behavior will result in an inability to complete the requirements for a Field Education course. Receipt of NO CREDIT for a Field Education course could result in dismissal from the program.
- e. The Director of Field Education will provide a written letter to the student, with copies to the respective CYF or OAF Field Coordinator or DE Site Coordinator, with a copy to the Associate Director, summarizing the outcome.
- f. Students will be expected to maintain the skills acquired as a result of the contract.

C. Fieldwork Internship Reassignment

Students may be reassigned to other fieldwork internships if: (a) the field instructor or seminar instructor/liaison and the respective Field Coordinator assess that a transition move is appropriate, and (b) there is another internship available. The new field instructor will be informed of the circumstances and/or performance issues necessitating the move. It must be noted that reassignment to a new agency is not always possible and is dependent upon the availability of a placement, and the appropriate timetable required for the student's completion of fieldwork hours.

Students who have Field Education Performance Contracts must take those contracts with them to their new fieldwork internship. Students must terminate appropriately with clients, and complete all required agency documentation before they may begin a new fieldwork internship and in order to remain in good standing. Failure to do so will result in an Administrative review to determine the student's status in field. The meeting may include the student, the field instructor, the liaison, and the Director of Field Education. Students may need to complete additional hours in fieldwork when reassignment occurs in order to experience the necessary orientation and integration into the new agency setting, and to provide a base for evaluating the students' performance. A minimum of 167 hours (1/3 of the 500 hours) must be completed in the new fieldwork internship site.

D. Additional Performance Contract

On very rare occasions and in the event that a student requires an additional Field Education Performance contract at the same agency, a confidential meeting will be held that may include the student, the field instructor, the liaison, and the Director of Field Education. A second contract may be written. The student must be successful in meeting the terms of the contract in order to receive a grade of CREDIT. If the student is unsuccessful, they will receive a grade of NO CREDIT and will be terminated from the program. Or, the student may be offered the option of withdrawing from the course and repeating it in the next academic year. In such cases, the student will be referred to the Associate Director to revise their academic plan.

E. Dismissal from Agency

At any time, an agency may request that a student discontinue their internship because of unethical behavior, unprofessional behavior or student performance issues. Following a dismissal from an agency, a confidential meeting will be held and will include the student, the liaison, and the Director of Field Education, and may include the field instructor and concentration coordinator for the purpose of discussing the student's status in the field program. As a result of the meeting: a) a student may be moved to a new agency (if available); b) a student may be offered the opportunity to repeat the semester at a new agency the following year; or, c) the student may be dismissed from the program. In the case of (a) or (b), the hours the student completed at the agency will not be counted toward the required 500 hours of internship.

F. Dismissal from MSW Program

Students who do not complete the terms of their Field Education Performance Contracts in an appropriate time frame may be terminated from their Field Education course with a grade of NO CREDIT. A grade of NO CREDIT might mean termination from the MSW program, as a passing grade in fieldwork is a requirement for continuation in the program.

Students who are documented as having behaviors listed above regarding student commitments and problem identification may be terminated from Field Education with a grade of NO CREDIT. A grade of NO CREDIT might mean termination from the MSW program, as a passing grade in fieldwork is a requirement for continuation in the program.

As in all instances of assignment of a final grade, students have the option of appealing that grade, in accordance with university grade appeals policies and procedures.

V. COMMUNITY SUPPORT AND COLLABORATION

A. Field Advisory Committee

The Field Advisory Committee (FAC) represents the diversity of our field instructors in significant areas: clinical and administrative expertise, public and private agencies, BASW and MSW programs, geographical, ethnic and gender, and area of community service. Members are invited to serve because of the specific perspectives they bring to the committee, commensurate with their demonstrated leadership and commitment to Field Education. The FAC provides critical feedback to the School of Social Work on developments in the community as they relate to social work education and participates in the planning and implementation of field events.

B. Joint Field Faculty Meetings and Events (Local, State, National)

Field faculty meet regularly with colleagues on local, state, and national levels to share policies, programs, practice, and research leading to improved social work education. In southern California, eleven universities collaborate on fieldwork activities, including sponsoring workshops for field instructors and preceptors, developing learning and assessment tools, and sharing resources. The consortium includes social work programs at the CSU campuses at Dominguez Hills, Fullerton, Los Angeles, Northridge, San Bernardino, and San Diego, as well as the social work schools at the University of California, Los Angeles; the University of Southern California; Loma Linda University; and, Azusa Pacific University. Meetings are rotated, and are hosted by each university. All field faculty from all Departments and Schools of social work participate in the local meetings.

Nationally, there is also an association for field educators. The Council on Social Work Education (CSWE) holds meetings and workshops to address cutting-edge issues related to Field Education. All field faculty are invited to participate in these meetings.

C. "Heart of Social Work" Award

Fieldwork is fondly referred to as the "heart of social work" because it is in the field that students and practitioners connect with clients. Each CSWE conference provides an opportunity to nominate an outstanding field instructor for a national "Heart of Social Work" award. The CSULB School of Social Work is proud to nominate a field instructor for this award. Over the years, both BASW and MSW program field instructors have been nominated.

A. SAFETY TIPS

Note: The following information is adapted from materials developed by the Los Angeles County School of Children & Family Services.

Whenever a CSW or Intern is with a potentially explosive client, either in an individual or group setting, there are certain precautions you can take.

- 1. *KNOW AS MUCH AS POSSIBLE ABOUT YOUR CLIENT!
Keep in mind any history of violence. Pay attention to warnings from others who know the client, and to any threats made by the client to the CSW or Intern or to others who may be involved in the meeting/contact.
- 2. *PLAN FOR THE UNEXPECTED!
While with the client, you should position yourself between the client and an available exit. You should always sit or stand by the nearest exit.
- 3. *SET THE GROUND RULES FOR THE MEETING FROM THE START!
Advise a potentially explosive client that any display of unacceptable behavior will lead to an early termination of the meeting.
- 4. *BE ALERT TO ANY ESCALATION OF HOSTILE BEHAVIOR!
If a client exhibits body movements that could indicate increased agitation, such as pacing, arm-swinging, fist-pounding, or a "too-close" body stance.
- 5. *BE AWARE OF VOICE-PATTERN CHANGES!
If the volume of a client's voice suddenly increases or decreases, or they begin to speak more slowly or rapidly, or the client demonstrates prolonged angry silences, or makes verbal threats, etc., this could indicate potentially volatile behavior.
- 6. *KNOW THAT THERE MAY BE POTENTIALLY ANGRY PEOPLE IN A GROUP!
Always be prepared to de-escalate a client's anger with your voice, words, and body language, should he or she appear to be getting out of control.
- 7. *CONSIDER HAVING ANOTHER WORKER IN THE INTERVIEW FROM THE START!
Or, plan to have a co-worker stop in periodically.
- 8. *INFORM SECURITY AND A SUPERVISOR OF CLIENTS WHO MAY POSE A THREAT!
When the client arrives at the office, the CSW or intern should also let the unit supervisor know—along with any available supervisor or a clerical staff person—about the possible threat. Ask that the clerical staff advise the CSW or intern whom you were unable to alert.
- 9. *BE PREPARED TO LEAVE AND GET HELP!
Take action if the client exhibits erratic behavior or becomes uncontrollable.
- 10. *HAVE ALL CHILDREN REMOVED FROM THE AREA!
If necessary, have children placed out of harm's way so they will not be exposed to an emotionally or physically harmful situation.
- 11. *LEAVE IF YOU FEEL THREATENED!
Be aware of home and neighborhood environments. Consult with your supervisor immediately, or as soon as possible thereafter, about the situation.

GETTING AROUND WITHOUT GETTING MUGGED!

Whether you are on the job or traveling on your own, there are steps you can take to minimize the hazards of going into strange neighborhoods and unfamiliar buildings.

YOUR BEST STRATEGY IS TO PLAN AHEAD!

- Arrange your schedule so you visit the worst section of town first thing in the morning.
- Leave a copy of your itinerary at your agency, and call the agency to inform them that you are safe at the end of your visit, or that you have reached home at the end of the day.
- Call a client BEFORE you set out for their house to confirm your appointment.
- If a client is new, ask for precise directions and repeat the directions back to them.
- If you must refer to a map or set of directions, do so before you leave the office or home.
- Know that lost people are prime targets for muggers. Knowing exactly where you are going will give you an air of authority that is good for protection.

DRESS TO PROTECT AGAINST MUGGERS!

- Do not wear flashy clothing or jewelry. You want to look like everyone else and blend in.
- Carry your work papers in an inexpensive case or folder.
- Carry only what you need for identification. Do not dangle a handbag from your shoulder.
- Carry just enough money for phone calls and lunch, tucked away in a pocket.
- When going into unfamiliar areas, soft-soled shoes are a must. Not just for comfort, but also to make it easy to run, if it should become necessary.

STAY SAFE EN ROUTE TO YOUR DESTINATION!

- Keep your car in top-notch condition, with adequate gasoline, to avoid breakdowns.
- Be sure to have change with you for parking meters, and store it out of sight.
- Keep your doors locked and your windows rolled up, especially in isolated areas.
- Do not get out of your car if you can possibly avoid it until you reach your destination.
- Avoid parking in dark, isolated areas, if at all possible.
- It is always better to park on the street than in a driveway or a parking garage.
- Watch for rubble, broken glass, or ditches that could flatten a tire or immobilize your car.
- Before getting out of your vehicle, make sure you have left nothing visible inside.
- Long before arriving at your destination, store personal belongings, work information, or extra supplies in your trunk.
- Get whatever supplies or information you will need for your next appointment out of your trunk before you arrive there, perhaps before you drive away from your previous stop.

WHEN YOU ARRIVE IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD!

- Walk briskly and act sure of yourself. Size up potential hazards without being obvious.
- Walk in the middle of the sidewalk and avoid dark alleyways, bars, and groups of loiterers.
- If a group is blocking the doorway to your client's residence, look for another entrance. If you do not see another entrance (as with an apartment building or condominium), and an individual or crowd seems hostile, walk away and reschedule the appointment.
- If you decide it is safe to enter the location, make a mental note of other exits as soon as you are inside (again, mainly for apartment buildings or condominiums).
- At all times, trust your instincts. If someone suspicious gets on the elevator with you, get off as soon as possible by pushing all the floor buttons.

THE DANGER IS NOT OVER WHEN YOU ARRIVE!

- At your client's door, pause for a minute to listen.
- If you hear loud quarreling, beat a hasty retreat. Walking in on a fight can be very dangerous, especially in high-crime areas, since many families keep guns or knives in their homes.
- Be alert to signs of violence or sexual advances, however subtle, from either a client or someone else present. If you think you could be in danger, casually move toward the doorway so that you can make a quick exit, if need be. Never allow yourself to be backed into a corner.
- If you encounter a serious threat to your safety—for example, a building that appears to be too dangerous to go into alone—ask your agency to provide you with an escort.

Plan ahead, be alert,
and take the proper precautions

Habits that will help you shrink the dangers of in-home or in-office visits to manageable size.

ALWAYS HAVE A PLAN

FAILING TO PLAN is PLANNING TO FAIL.

B. Code of Ethics
of the National Association of Social Workers
Approved by the 1996 NASW Delegate Assembly and revised by the 2008 NASW Delegate Assembly

Preamble

The primary mission of the social work profession is to enhance human wellbeing and help meet the basic human needs of all people, with particular attention to the needs and empowerment of people who are vulnerable, oppressed, and living in poverty. A historic and defining feature of social work is the profession's focus on individual wellbeing in a social context and the wellbeing of society. Fundamental to social work is attention to the environmental forces that create, contribute to, and address problems in living.

Social workers promote social justice and social change with and on behalf of clients. "Clients" is used inclusively to refer to individuals, families, groups, organizations, and communities. Social workers are sensitive to cultural and ethnic diversity and strive to end discrimination, oppression, poverty, and other forms of social injustice. These activities may be in the form of direct practice, community organizing, supervision, consultation administration, advocacy, social and political action, policy development and implementation, education, and research and evaluation. Social workers seek to enhance the capacity of people to address their own needs. Social workers also seek to promote the responsiveness of organizations, communities, and other social institutions to individuals' needs and social problems.

The mission of the social work profession is rooted in a set of core values. These core values, embraced by social workers throughout the profession's history, are the foundation of social work's unique purpose and perspective:

- service
- social justice
- dignity and worth of the person
- importance of human relationships
- integrity
- competence.

This constellation of core values reflects what is unique to the social work profession. Core values, and the principles that flow from them, must be balanced within the context and complexity of the human experience.

Purpose of the NASW Code of Ethics

Professional ethics are at the core of social work. The profession has an obligation to articulate its basic values, ethical principles, and ethical standards. The NASW Code of Ethics sets forth these values, principles, and standards to guide social workers' conduct. The Code is relevant to all social workers and social work students, regardless of their professional functions, the settings in which they work, or the populations they serve.

The NASW Code of Ethics serves six purposes:

1. The Code identifies core values on which social work's mission is based.
2. The Code summarizes broad ethical principles that reflect the profession's core values and establishes a set of specific ethical standards that should be used to guide social work practice.
3. The Code is designed to help social workers identify relevant considerations when professional obligations conflict or ethical uncertainties arise.
4. The Code provides ethical standards to which the general public can hold the social work profession accountable.
5. The Code socializes practitioners new to the field to social work's mission, values, ethical principles, and ethical standards.
6. The Code articulates standards that the social work profession itself can use to assess whether social workers have engaged in unethical conduct. NASW has formal procedures to adjudicate ethics complaints filed against its members.* In subscribing to this Code, social workers are required to cooperate in its implementation, participate in NASW adjudication proceedings, and abide by any NASW disciplinary rulings or sanctions based on it.

The Code offers a set of values, principles, and standards to guide decision making and conduct when ethical issues arise. It does not provide a set of rules that prescribe how social workers should act in all situations. Specific applications of the Code must take into account the context in which it is being considered and the possibility of conflicts among the Code's values, principles, and standards. Ethical responsibilities flow from all human relationships, from the personal and familial to the social and professional.

Further, the NASW Code of Ethics does not specify which values, principles, and standards are most important and ought to outweigh others in instances when they conflict. Reasonable differences of opinion can and do exist among social workers with respect to the ways in which values, ethical principles, and ethical standards should be rank ordered when they conflict. Ethical decision making in a given situation must apply the informed judgment of the individual social worker and should also consider how the issues would be judged in a peer review process where the ethical standards of the profession would be applied.

Ethical decision making is a process. There are many instances in social work where simple answers are not available to resolve complex ethical issues. Social workers should take into consideration all the values, principles, and standards in this Code that are relevant to any situation in which ethical judgment is warranted. Social workers' decisions and actions should be consistent with the spirit as well as the letter of this Code.

In addition to this Code, there are many other sources of information about ethical thinking that may be useful. Social workers should consider ethical theory and principles generally, social work theory and research, laws, regulations, agency policies, and other relevant codes of ethics, recognizing that among codes of ethics social workers should consider the NASW Code of Ethics as their primary source. Social workers also should be aware of the impact on ethical decision making of their clients' and their own personal values and cultural and religious beliefs and practices. They should be aware of any conflicts between personal and professional values and deal with them responsibly. For additional guidance social workers should consult the relevant literature on professional ethics and ethical decision making and seek appropriate consultation when faced with ethical dilemmas. This may involve consultation with an agency based or social work organization's ethics committee, a regulatory body, knowledgeable colleagues, supervisors, or legal counsel.

Instances may arise when social workers' ethical obligations conflict with agency policies or relevant laws or regulations. When such conflicts occur, social workers must make a responsible effort to resolve the conflict in a manner that is consistent with the values, principles, and standards expressed in this Code. If a reasonable resolution of the conflict does not appear possible, social workers should seek proper consultation before making a decision.

The NASW Code of Ethics is to be used by NASW and by individuals, agencies, organizations, and bodies (such as licensing and regulatory boards, professional liability insurance providers, courts of law, agency boards of directors, government agencies, and other professional groups) that choose to adopt it or use it as a frame of reference. Violation of standards in this Code does not automatically imply legal liability or violation of the law. Such determination can only be made in the context of legal and judicial proceedings. Alleged violations of the Code would be subject to a peer review process. Such processes are generally separate from legal or administrative procedures and insulated from legal review or proceedings to allow the profession to counsel and discipline its own members.

A code of ethics cannot guarantee ethical behavior. Moreover, a code of ethics cannot resolve all ethical issues or disputes or capture the richness and complexity involved in striving to make responsible choices within a moral community. Rather, a code of ethics sets forth values, ethical principles, and ethical standards to which professionals aspire and by which their actions can be judged. Social workers' ethical behavior should result from their personal commitment to engage in ethical practice. The NASW Code of Ethics reflects the commitment of all social workers to uphold the profession's values and to act ethically. Principles and standards must be applied by individuals of good character who discern moral questions and, in good faith, seek to make reliable ethical judgments.

Ethical Principles

The following broad ethical principles are based on social work's core values of service, social justice, dignity and worth of the person, importance of human relationships, integrity, and competence. These principles set forth ideals to which all social workers should aspire.

Value: Service

Ethical Principle: Social workers' primary goal is to help people in need and to address social problems.

Social workers elevate service to others above self interest. Social workers draw on their knowledge, values, and skills to help people in need and to address social problems. Social workers are encouraged to volunteer some portion of their professional skills with no expectation of significant financial return (pro bono service).

Value: Social Justice

Ethical Principle: Social workers challenge social injustice.

Social workers pursue social change, particularly with and on behalf of vulnerable and oppressed individuals and groups of people. Social workers' social change efforts are focused primarily on issues of poverty, unemployment, discrimination, and other forms of social injustice. These activities seek to promote sensitivity to and knowledge about oppression and cultural and ethnic diversity. Social workers strive to ensure access to needed information, services, and resources; equality of opportunity; and meaningful participation in decision making for all people.

Value: Dignity and Worth of the Person

Ethical Principle: Social workers respect the inherent dignity and worth of the person.

Social workers treat each person in a caring and respectful fashion, mindful of individual differences and cultural and ethnic diversity. Social workers promote clients' socially responsible self determination. Social workers seek to enhance clients' capacity and opportunity to change and to address their own needs. Social workers are cognizant of their dual responsibility to clients and to the broader society. They seek to resolve conflicts between clients' interests and the broader society's interests in a socially responsible manner consistent with the values, ethical principles, and ethical standards of the profession.

Value: Importance of Human Relationships

Ethical Principle: Social workers recognize the central importance of human relationships.

Social workers understand that relationships between and among people are an important vehicle for change. Social workers engage people as partners in the helping process. Social workers seek to strengthen relationships among people in a purposeful effort to promote, restore, maintain, and enhance the wellbeing of individuals, families, social groups, organizations, and communities.

Value: Integrity

Ethical Principle: Social workers behave in a trustworthy manner.

Social workers are continually aware of the profession's mission, values, ethical principles, and ethical standards and practice in a manner consistent with them. Social workers act honestly and responsibly and promote ethical practices on the part of the organizations with which they are affiliated.

Value: Competence

Ethical Principle: Social workers practice within their areas of competence and develop and enhance their professional expertise.

Social workers continually strive to increase their professional knowledge and skills and to apply them in practice. Social workers should aspire to contribute to the knowledge base of the profession.

Ethical Standards

The following ethical standards are relevant to the professional activities of all social workers. These standards concern (1) social workers' ethical responsibilities to clients, (2) social workers' ethical responsibilities to colleagues, (3) social workers' ethical responsibilities in practice settings, (4) social workers' ethical responsibilities as professionals, (5) social workers' ethical responsibilities to the social work profession, and (6) social workers' ethical responsibilities to the broader society.

Some of the standards that follow are enforceable guidelines for professional conduct, and some are aspirational. The extent to which each standard is enforceable is a matter of professional judgment to be exercised by those responsible for reviewing alleged violations of ethical standards.

1. SOCIAL WORKERS' ETHICAL RESPONSIBILITIES TO CLIENTS

1.01 Commitment to Clients

Social workers' primary responsibility is to promote the wellbeing of clients. In general, clients' interests are primary. However, social workers' responsibility to the larger society or specific legal obligations may on limited occasions supersede the loyalty owed clients, and clients should be so advised. (Examples include when a social worker is required by law to report that a client has abused a child or has threatened to harm self or others.)

1.02 Self-Determination

Social workers respect and promote the right of clients to self determination and assist clients in their efforts to identify and clarify their goals. Social workers may limit clients' right to self determination when, in the social workers' professional judgment, clients' actions or potential actions pose a serious, foreseeable, and imminent risk to themselves or others.

1.03 Informed Consent

(a) Social workers should provide services to clients only in the context of a professional relationship based, when appropriate, on valid informed consent. Social workers should use clear and understandable language to inform clients of the purpose of the services, risks related to the services, limits to services because of the requirements of a third party payer, relevant costs, reasonable alternatives, clients' right to refuse or withdraw consent, and the time frame covered by the consent. Social workers should provide clients with an opportunity to ask questions.

(b) In instances when clients are not literate or have difficulty understanding the primary language used in the practice setting, social workers should take steps to ensure clients' comprehension. This may include providing clients with a detailed verbal explanation or arranging for a qualified interpreter or translator whenever possible.

(c) In instances when clients lack the capacity to provide informed consent, social workers should protect clients' interests by seeking permission from an appropriate third party, informing clients consistent with the clients' level of understanding. In such instances social workers should seek to ensure that the third party acts in a manner consistent with clients' wishes and interests. Social workers should take reasonable steps to enhance such clients' ability to give informed consent.

(d) In instances when clients are receiving services involuntarily, social workers should provide information about the nature and extent of services and about the extent of clients' right to refuse service.

(e) Social workers who provide services via electronic media (such as computer, telephone, radio, and television) should inform recipients of the limitations and risks associated with such services.

(f) Social workers should obtain clients' informed consent before audio-taping or videotaping clients or permitting observation of services to clients by a third party.

1.04 Competence

(a) Social workers should provide services and represent themselves as competent only within the boundaries of their education, training, license, certification, consultation received, supervised experience, or other relevant professional experience.

(b) Social workers should provide services in substantive areas or use intervention techniques or approaches that are new to them only after engaging in appropriate study, training, consultation, and supervision from people who are competent in those interventions or techniques.

(c) When generally recognized standards do not exist with respect to an emerging area of practice, social workers should exercise careful judgment and take responsible steps (including appropriate education, research, training, consultation, and supervision) to ensure the competence of their work and to protect clients from harm.

1.05 Cultural Competence and Social Diversity

(a) Social workers should understand culture and its function in human behavior and society, recognizing the strengths that exist in all cultures.

(b) Social workers should have a knowledge base of their clients' cultures and be able to demonstrate competence in the provision of services that are sensitive to clients' cultures and to differences among people and cultural groups.

(c) Social workers should obtain education about and seek to understand the nature of social diversity and oppression with respect to race, ethnicity, national origin, color, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, age, marital status, political belief, religion, immigration status, and mental or physical disability.

1.06 Conflicts of Interest

- (a) Social workers should be alert to and avoid conflicts of interest that interfere with the exercise of professional discretion and impartial judgment. Social workers should inform clients when a real or potential conflict of interest arises and take reasonable steps to resolve the issue in a manner that makes the clients' interests primary and protects clients' interests to the greatest extent possible. In some cases, protecting clients' interests may require termination of the professional relationship with proper referral of the client.
- (b) Social workers should not take unfair advantage of any professional relationship or exploit others to further their personal, religious, political, or business interests.
- (c) Social workers should not engage in dual or multiple relationships with clients or former clients in which there is a risk of exploitation or potential harm to the client. In instances when dual or multiple relationships are unavoidable, social workers should take steps to protect clients and are responsible for setting clear, appropriate, and culturally sensitive boundaries. (Dual or multiple relationships occur when social workers relate to clients in more than one relationship, whether professional, social, or business. Dual or multiple relationships can occur simultaneously or consecutively.)
- (d) When social workers provide services to two or more people who have a relationship with each other (for example, couples, family members), social workers should clarify with all parties which individuals will be considered clients and the nature of social workers' professional obligations to the various individuals who are receiving services. Social workers who anticipate a conflict of interest among the individuals receiving services or who anticipate having to perform in potentially conflicting roles (for example, when a social worker is asked to testify in a child custody dispute or divorce proceedings involving clients) should clarify their role with the parties involved and take appropriate action to minimize any conflict of interest.

1.07 Privacy and Confidentiality

- (a) Social workers should respect clients' right to privacy. Social workers should not solicit private information from clients unless it is essential to providing services or conducting social work evaluation or research. Once private information is shared, standards of confidentiality apply.
- (b) Social workers may disclose confidential information when appropriate with valid consent from a client or a person legally authorized to consent on behalf of a client.
- (c) Social workers should protect the confidentiality of all information obtained in the course of professional service, except for compelling professional reasons. The general expectation that social workers will keep information confidential does not apply when disclosure is necessary to prevent serious, foreseeable, and imminent harm to a client or other identifiable person. In all instances, social workers should disclose the least amount of confidential information necessary to achieve the desired purpose; only information that is directly relevant to the purpose for which the disclosure is made should be revealed.
- (d) Social workers should inform clients, to the extent possible, about the disclosure of confidential information and the potential consequences, when feasible before the disclosure is made. This applies whether social workers disclose confidential information on the basis of a legal requirement or client consent.
- (e) Social workers should discuss with clients and other interested parties the nature of confidentiality and limitations of clients' right to confidentiality. Social workers should review with clients circumstances where confidential information may be requested and where disclosure of confidential information may be legally required. This discussion should occur as soon as possible in the social worker/client relationship and as needed throughout the course of the relationship.
- (f) When social workers provide counseling services to families, couples, or groups, social workers should seek agreement among the parties involved concerning each individual's right to confidentiality and obligation to preserve the confidentiality of information shared by others. Social workers should inform participants in family, couples, or group counseling that social workers cannot guarantee that all participants will honor such agreements.
- (g) Social workers should inform clients involved in family, couples, marital, or group counseling of the social worker's, employer's, and agency's policy concerning the social worker's disclosure of confidential information among the parties involved in the counseling.
- (h) Social workers should not disclose confidential information to third party payers unless clients have authorized such disclosure.

(i) Social workers should not discuss confidential information in any setting unless privacy can be ensured. Social workers should not discuss confidential information in public or semipublic areas such as hallways, waiting rooms, elevators, and restaurants.

(j) Social workers should protect the confidentiality of clients during legal proceedings to the extent permitted by law. When a court of law or other legally authorized body orders social workers to disclose confidential or privileged information without a client's consent and such disclosure could cause harm to the client, social workers should request that the court withdraw the order or limit the order as narrowly as possible or maintain the records under seal, unavailable for public inspection.

(k) Social workers should protect the confidentiality of clients when responding to requests from members of the media.

(l) Social workers should protect the confidentiality of clients' written and electronic records and other sensitive information. Social workers should take reasonable steps to ensure that clients' records are stored in a secure location and that clients' records are not available to others who are not authorized to have access.

(m) Social workers should take precautions to ensure and maintain the confidentiality of information transmitted to other parties through the use of computers, electronic mail, facsimile machines, telephones and telephone answering machines, and other electronic or computer technology. Disclosure of identifying information should be avoided whenever possible.

(n) Social workers should transfer or dispose of clients' records in a manner that protects clients' confidentiality and is consistent with state statutes governing records and social work licensure.

(o) Social workers should take reasonable precautions to protect client confidentiality in the event of the social worker's termination of practice, incapacitation, or death.

(p) Social workers should not disclose identifying information when discussing clients for teaching or training purposes unless the client has consented to disclosure of confidential information.

(q) Social workers should not disclose identifying information when discussing clients with Coordinators unless the client has consented to disclosure of confidential information or there is a compelling need for such disclosure.

(r) Social workers should protect the confidentiality of deceased clients consistent with the preceding standards.

1.08 Access to Records

(a) Social workers should provide clients with reasonable access to records concerning the clients. Social workers who are concerned that clients' access to their records could cause serious misunderstanding or harm to the client should provide assistance in interpreting the records and consultation with the client regarding the records. Social workers should limit clients' access to their records, or portions of their records, only in exceptional circumstances when there is compelling evidence that such access would cause serious harm to the client. Both clients' requests and the rationale for withholding some or all of the record should be documented in clients' files.

(b) When providing clients with access to their records, social workers should take steps to protect the confidentiality of other individuals identified or discussed in such records.

1.09 Sexual Relationships

(a) Social workers should under no circumstances engage in sexual activities or sexual contact with current clients, whether such contact is consensual or forced.

(b) Social workers should not engage in sexual activities or sexual contact with clients' relatives or other individuals with whom clients maintain a close personal relationship when there is a risk of exploitation or potential harm to the client. Sexual activity or sexual contact with clients' relatives or other individuals with whom clients maintain a personal relationship has the potential to be harmful to the client and may make it difficult for the social worker and client to maintain appropriate professional boundaries. Social workers—not their clients, their clients' relatives, or other individuals with whom the client maintains a personal relationship—assume the full burden for setting clear, appropriate, and culturally sensitive boundaries.

(c) Social workers should not engage in sexual activities or sexual contact with former clients because of the potential for harm to the client. If social workers engage in conduct contrary to this prohibition or claim that an exception to this prohibition is warranted because of extraordinary circumstances, it is social workers—not their clients—who assume the full burden of demonstrating that the former client has not been exploited, coerced, or manipulated, intentionally or unintentionally.

(d) Social workers should not provide clinical services to individuals with whom they have had a prior sexual relationship. Providing clinical services to a former sexual partner has the potential to be harmful to the individual and is likely to make it difficult for the social worker and individual to maintain appropriate professional boundaries.

1.10 Physical Contact

Social workers should not engage in physical contact with clients when there is a possibility of psychological harm to the client as a result of the contact (such as cradling or caressing clients). Social workers who engage in appropriate physical contact with clients are responsible for setting clear, appropriate, and culturally sensitive boundaries that govern such physical contact.

1.11 Sexual Harassment

Social workers should not sexually harass clients. Sexual harassment includes sexual advances, sexual solicitation, requests for sexual favors, and other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature.

1.12 Derogatory Language

Social workers should not use derogatory language in their written or verbal communications to or about clients. Social workers should use accurate and respectful language in all communications to and about clients.

1.13 Payment for Services

(a) When setting fees, social workers should ensure that the fees are fair, reasonable, and commensurate with the services performed. Consideration should be given to clients' ability to pay.

(b) Social workers should avoid accepting goods or services from clients as payment for professional services. Bartering arrangements, particularly involving services, create the potential for conflicts of interest, exploitation, and inappropriate boundaries in social workers' relationships with clients. Social workers should explore and may participate in bartering only in very limited circumstances when it can be demonstrated that such arrangements are an accepted practice among professionals in the local community, considered to be essential for the provision of services, negotiated without coercion, and entered into at the client's initiative and with the client's informed consent. Social workers who accept goods or services from clients as payment for professional services assume the full burden of demonstrating that this arrangement will not be detrimental to the client or the professional relationship.

(c) Social workers should not solicit a private fee or other remuneration for providing services to clients who are entitled to such available services through the social workers' employer or agency.

1.14 Clients Who Lack Decision-Making Capacity

When social workers act on behalf of clients who lack the capacity to make informed decisions, social workers should take reasonable steps to safeguard the interests and rights of those clients.

1.15 Interruption of Services

Social workers should make reasonable efforts to ensure continuity of services in the event that services are interrupted by factors such as unavailability, relocation, illness, disability, or death.

1.16 Termination of Services

(a) Social workers should terminate services to clients and professional relationships with them when such services and relationships are no longer required or no longer serve the clients' needs or interests.

(b) Social workers should take reasonable steps to avoid abandoning clients who are still in need of services. Social workers should withdraw services precipitously only under unusual circumstances, giving careful consideration to all factors in the situation and taking care to minimize possible adverse effects. Social workers should assist in making appropriate arrangements for continuation of services when necessary.

(c) Social workers in fee-for-service settings may terminate services to clients who are not paying an overdue balance if the financial contractual arrangements have been made clear to the client, if the client does not pose an imminent danger to self or others, and if the clinical and other consequences of the current nonpayment have been addressed and discussed with the client.

(d) Social workers should not terminate services to pursue a social, financial, or sexual relationship with a client.

(e) Social workers who anticipate the termination or interruption of services to clients should notify clients promptly and seek the transfer, referral, or continuation of services in relation to the clients' needs and preferences.

(f) Social workers who are leaving an employment setting should inform clients of appropriate options for the continuation of services and of the benefits and risks of the options.

2. SOCIAL WORKERS' ETHICAL RESPONSIBILITIES TO COLLEAGUES

2.01 Respect

(a) Social workers should treat colleagues with respect and should represent accurately and fairly the qualifications, views, and obligations of colleagues.

(b) Social workers should avoid unwarranted negative criticism of colleagues in communications with clients or with other professionals. Unwarranted negative criticism may include demeaning comments that refer to colleagues' level of competence or to individuals' attributes such as race, ethnicity, national origin, color, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, age, marital status, political belief, religion, immigration status, and mental or physical disability.

(c) Social workers should cooperate with social work colleagues and with colleagues of other professions when such cooperation serves the wellbeing of clients.

2.02 Confidentiality

Social workers should respect confidential information shared by colleagues in the course of their professional relationships and transactions. Social workers should ensure that such colleagues understand social workers' obligation to respect confidentiality and any exceptions related to it.

2.03 Interdisciplinary Collaboration

(a) Social workers who are members of an interdisciplinary team should participate in and contribute to decisions that affect the wellbeing of clients by drawing on the perspectives, values, and experiences of the social work profession. Professional and ethical obligations of the interdisciplinary team as a whole and of its individual members should be clearly established.

(b) Social workers for whom a team decision raises ethical concerns should attempt to resolve the disagreement through appropriate channels. If the disagreement cannot be resolved, social workers should pursue other avenues to address their concerns consistent with client wellbeing.

2.04 Disputes Involving Colleagues

(a) Social workers should not take advantage of a dispute between a colleague and an employer to obtain a position or otherwise advance the social workers' own interests.

(b) Social workers should not exploit clients in disputes with colleagues or engage clients in any inappropriate discussion of conflicts between social workers and their colleagues.

2.05 Consultation

(a) Social workers should seek the advice and counsel of colleagues whenever such consultation is in the best interests of clients.

(b) Social workers should keep themselves informed about colleagues' areas of expertise and competencies. Social workers should seek consultation only from colleagues who have demonstrated knowledge, expertise, and competence related to the subject of the consultation.

(c) When consulting with colleagues about clients, social workers should disclose the least amount of information necessary to achieve the purposes of the consultation.

2.06 Referral for Services

(a) Social workers should refer clients to other professionals when the other professionals' specialized knowledge or expertise is needed to serve clients fully or when social workers believe that they are not being effective or making reasonable progress with clients and that additional service is required.

(b) Social workers who refer clients to other professionals should take appropriate steps to facilitate an orderly transfer of responsibility. Social workers who refer clients to other professionals should disclose, with clients' consent, all pertinent information to the new service providers.

(c) Social workers are prohibited from giving or receiving payment for a referral when no professional service is provided by the referring social worker.

2.07 Sexual Relationships

(a) Social workers who function as supervisors or educators should not engage in sexual activities or contact with supervisees, students, trainees, or other colleagues over whom they exercise professional authority.

(b) Social workers should avoid engaging in sexual relationships with colleagues when there is potential for a conflict of interest. Social workers who become involved in, or anticipate becoming involved in, a sexual relationship with a colleague have a duty to transfer professional responsibilities, when necessary, to avoid a conflict of interest.

2.08 Sexual Harassment

Social workers should not sexually harass supervisees, students, trainees, or colleagues. Sexual harassment includes sexual advances, sexual solicitation, requests for sexual favors, and other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature.

2.09 Impairment of Colleagues

(a) Social workers who have direct knowledge of a social work colleague's impairment that is due to personal problems, psychosocial distress, substance abuse, or mental health difficulties and that interferes with practice effectiveness should consult with that colleague when feasible and assist the colleague in taking remedial action.

(b) Social workers who believe that a social work colleague's impairment interferes with practice effectiveness and that the colleague has not taken adequate steps to address the impairment should take action through appropriate channels established by employers, agencies, NASW, licensing and regulatory bodies, and other professional organizations.

2.10 Incompetence of Colleagues

(a) Social workers who have direct knowledge of a social work colleague's incompetence should consult with that colleague when feasible and assist the colleague in taking remedial action.

(b) Social workers who believe that a social work colleague is incompetent and has not taken adequate steps to address the incompetence should take action through appropriate channels established by employers, agencies, NASW, licensing and regulatory bodies, and other professional organizations.

2.11 Unethical Conduct of Colleagues

- (a) Social workers should take adequate measures to discourage, prevent, expose, and correct the unethical conduct of colleagues.
- (b) Social workers should be knowledgeable about established policies and procedures for handling concerns about colleagues' unethical behavior. Social workers should be familiar with national, state, and local procedures for handling ethics complaints. These include policies and procedures created by NASW, licensing and regulatory bodies, employers, agencies, and other professional organizations.
- (c) Social workers who believe that a colleague has acted unethically should seek resolution by discussing their concerns with the colleague when feasible and when such discussion is likely to be productive.
- (d) When necessary, social workers who believe that a colleague has acted unethically should take action through appropriate formal channels (such as contacting a state licensing board or regulatory body, an NASW committee on inquiry, or other professional ethics committees).

3.05 Billing

Social workers should establish and maintain billing practices that accurately reflect the nature and extent of services provided and that identify who provided the service in the practice setting.

3.06 Client Transfer

- (a) When an individual who is receiving services from another agency or colleague contacts a social worker for services, the social worker should carefully consider the client's needs before agreeing to provide services. To minimize possible confusion and conflict, social workers should discuss with potential clients the nature of the clients' current relationship with other service providers and the implications, including possible benefits or risks, of entering into a relationship with a new service provider.
- (b) If a new client has been served by another agency or colleague, social workers should discuss with the client whether consultation with the previous service provider is in the client's best interest.

3.07 Administration

- (a) Social work administrators should advocate within and outside their agencies for adequate resources to meet clients' needs.
- (b) Social workers should advocate for resource allocation procedures that are open and fair. When not all clients' needs can be met, an allocation procedure should be developed that is nondiscriminatory and based on appropriate and consistently applied principles.
- (c) Social workers who are administrators should take reasonable steps to ensure that adequate agency or organizational resources are available to provide appropriate staff supervision.

(f) When evaluation or research participants are incapable of giving informed consent, social workers should provide an appropriate explanation to the participants, obtain the participants' assent to the extent they are able, and obtain written consent from an appropriate proxy.

(g) Social workers should never design or conduct evaluation or research that does not use consent procedures, such as certain forms of naturalistic observation and archival research, unless rigorous and responsible review of the research has found it to be justified because of its prospective scientific, educational, or applied value and unless equally effective alternative procedures that do not involve waiver of consent are not feasible.

(h) Social workers should inform participants of their right to withdraw from evaluation and research at any time without penalty.

(i) Social workers should take appropriate steps to ensure that participants in evaluation and research have access to appropriate supportive services.
