

A new African-American business publication called The Atlanta Post is looking for profiles of African-American entrepreneurs and individuals with interesting careers (or jobs that most people would love to have). For example, mediabistro profiles a lot of interesting media people in their column here. We are looking for Q&As in the same vein and which would target his/her background, career path, and questions relating to his/her industry. As an example, we are looking to feature anyone from Don Lemon (CNN Anchor) to an executive at Disney to smaller scale local entrepreneur. We are paying $30 for these pieces and it would be a good way to obtain a byline and quickly produce an article. Please email editorial@atlantapost.com with a pitch of your idea and include "Profile Pitch" in the subject line. Thanks!

Best,
