

Hi! I am the Volunteer Specialist for the city of Culver City. I recently had a local non-profit ask me if I could help them find a volunteer newsletter writer / editor. As a former J-School gal (class of 03), I thought this sounded like the perfect thing for a journalism or communications student!

A quick info blurb is below - they can send me an email if interested!

It is also at this link:

Thank you for listing this!

Best,

Newsletter Guru Needed

Description

Help support a worthy non-profit while also adding valuable skills to your resume!

Loved Ones Victim Services (LOVS) is looking for a skilled volunteer to help write, edit and design their quarterly newsletter.

Currently the newsletter is four pages and the staff uses InDesign software for layout and design. The volunteer would work with staff to develop story ideas.

The primary mission of Loved Ones Victims Services (LOVS) is dedicated to meeting the emotional and physical needs of family members and friends who have lost loved ones, often-times to violence. We care for families of drunk driving accidents as well. Our primary objective is to provide individuals, family and group counseling for adults, teens and children, with an immediate focus on young children. In addition, we provide professional support services, educational resources, and information and material about other associated services.

Their website can be found at: <http://www.lovs.org/>
Skills

Writing, editing and design skills needed. Ideal for communications or journalism students or adults looking for a "real world" volunteer assignment.

Please note that this volunteer project can be done from home and on the volunteers' schedule, as long as deadlines are met.
