

Safe Navigation – Book Editor

You might remember I graduated last year, and I've been doing design work for about 9 months now with a company called Safe Navigation. They're a nautical chart agent, meaning they distribute maps, books and equipment for the maritime industry. You might have also heard from Barb that I applied to the Peace Corps after graduation and am due to deploy in September, which means my job will be opening up in a few months. They've asked me to try and find a replacement, and since I originally heard about it from the Department I thought I would send it back.

It's a full-time position in downtown LB, although they might consider hiring part-time for a student. The title is "Book Editor" because my main duty is digitally updating nautical logbooks on top of other design and printing assignments. I use Photoshop, Acrobat and a scanner daily. The job gives you a lot of freedom and it looks great on the resume.

I know September is a long time from now, but it might be helpful to ask you before summer session starts. Hope your semester is going well and please contact me if you have questions (or know prospective applicants!)

Andy Franks - aefranks@gmail.com