SOCIOLOGY 495 Internships

Internships provide an educational experience through work involvement in a community setting. Internships are available at agencies providing services in AIDS, Family and Mental Health, and Gerontology. Internships also are available at numerous agencies in Long Beach as well as in the Southern California area.

Internships are available fall, spring, winter, and summer sessions. Internships count for 3 units in the Deviance and Social Control and Medical Sociology concentrations. They also can be taken as an elective.

Students are required to work 160 hours for 4 units; 120 hours for 3 units; 80 hours for 2 units; and 40 hours for 1 unit. Mid-term and final evaluations are conducted by the agency and, a journal and a final paper are also required.

Most internships do not pay. The few that do usually pay in the range of $7 - $11 an hour. Students often learn about job openings through their internships. Many students have been offered paid positions upon completion of their internships. In addition, many students have been able to obtain positive letters of recommendation from their agency supervisors.
