Long Beach, CA – Where have all the shuttles gone? Why did my classes get cut? You want me to pay how much?

The California State University system has taken many blows this year, and as the hits keep coming, students fall short of receiving any answers.

In his first State of the Associated Students Address, AS President Chris Chavez will deliver “Confronting Crisis: The Student Defense Initiative,” a five-point plan that covers academics, logistics, advocacy, morale and outreach on Wednesday, Oct. 14 at 3 p.m. on the University Student Union Southwest Terrace.

Chavez hopes the plan will not only result in improved healthcare and transportation, but better relations with the City of Long Beach as well. A stronger presence in the community would mean more representation during crucial decisions involving education.

Chavez said he plans to clear up any ambiguity for questioning students and will divulge what the ASI has already done to tackle the most worrisome budgetary issues.

Students want answers, they are staying skeptical, and above all, they are worried about their futures.
