COLLEGE OF THE ARTS: AI IN THE CREATIVE CAREER PREPARATION PROCESS

This year, the Career Development Center refreshed its career preparedness presentation for Interior Design students to include insights on how Applicant Tracking Systems (ATS) can impact their resumes when applying to design studios. As AI continues to reshape the creative industries, these conversations are becoming increasingly vital.

Interior Design students were also introduced to the Jobscan platform, a valuable tool that helps them tailor their resumes and highlight their unique voice throughout the application process. The Career Development Center was excited to share this resource while continuing to provide guidance on resume writing and interview preparation—key steps in helping students secure roles in Interior Design after graduation.

COLLEGE OF EDUCATION (CED)

Liaisons: Robert Wendt, Career Counselor & Jina Flores, Associate Director

FORGING A NEW PATH: STRENGTHENING TIES WITH THE COLLEGE OF EDUCATION

A new chapter of collaboration with the College of Education began in Spring 2025, marked by a shift in liaison assignment and a renewed commitment to partnership. The initiative launched with a strategic brainstorming session aimed at identifying the College's priorities & exploring how the Career Development Center (CDC) could best support CED students.

This revitalized partnership was further strengthened by the hiring and onboarding of a Career Peer Advisor, who now holds dedicated advising hours within the College. This arrangement aligns with CED's holistic approach to student support—integrating financial aid, mental health services, and career development into a comprehensive, wraparound model. The CDC is proud to contribute to this effort, ensuring students have access to meaningful career guidance as part of their broader educational experience.

COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING (COE)

Liaisons: Sarah Sasaki, Career Counselor & Jina Flores, Associate Director

BEGINNING A NEW CHAPTER: STAFF AND STUDENT CONNECTIONS IN THE COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING

In Spring 2025, a new counselor stepped into the liaison role and actively engaged with CDC staff and the College of Engineering Professional Development & Internship Specialist to better understand the college's needs and explore opportunities for future collaboration. During the College of Engineering Spring Social, meaningful connections were made with several student organizations through conversations about their missions, ways for students to get involved, and the services offered by the CDC. Additionally, the college hosted a resume training session for CDC Career Peer Advisors, aimed at enhancing their ability to support engineering students more effectively. The college continues to promote CDC events, resources, and job opportunities to students via its mailing list.
