

Los Angeles Blade Internship Spring 2025

Los Angeles Blade. SoCal's LGBTQ+ News Source is currently on the search for an intern who will benefit from the skills of working with a digital and print publication which has roots and connections everywhere between Hollywood and The White House. Los Angeles Blade is the sister publication of The Washington Blade, the longest-running LGBTQ publication in the United States, and the only LGBTQ+ publication currently allowed press access in The White House. In my position, I also work alongside the CALÓ News team, covering Latin issues.

I am hoping to work with a student who can contribute their ideas for coverage and develop their multimedia storytelling skills while working on stories they are passionate about and in the format they are most excited to develop (i.e. writing, photography, video, social media). This internship is also meant to help a student establish connections in the journalism field, specifically within the QTBIPOC communities of Los Angeles. The student will work on coverage throughout the semester with no hard deadlines (don't tell them that), and at the end their work will be considered for publication with the Los Angeles Blade, The Washington Blade and/or CALÓ News.

Thank you kindly,

Gisselle Palomera (they/them)
