Which course did DSP recommend?

100A

100B

Do you think you will benefit by

- a less hurried, more in-depth experience with college-level reading and writing?
- a class that gives you practice researching, writing and revising college-level texts related to your personal goals and life experiences?
- a class that teaches strategies for navigating difficult, college-level reading?

Take 100A or equivalent.*

It will initiate you into university life while you build strong college reading and writing experience. You will move on to 100B with confidence.

Take 100B or equivalent.

You already have considerable experience with reading, writing, and revising a variety of texts at moderate to high levels of difficulty.

*100A is NOT a “remedial,” back-to-basics course. As a 2-semester sequence paired with 100B, it offers a less hurried and more in-depth immersion in reading, writing, and inquiry. But this immersion is always at college level.
