WHY THE COMMISSION WAS CREATED...

The President’s Equity & Change Commission (PECC) was created out of a need to not only achieve inclusive excellence in our community and culture, but also to interrogate, disrupt, and transform systemic inequities throughout the university. The Commission integrates diversity, equity, and educational inclusion into the fabric of our institutional operations, knowledge creation, student engagement, and collegial relationships; bringing forth actionable recommendations for change.
MISSION

The Mission of the President’s Commission on Equity and Change is to serve in an advisory capacity to the President to provide and support opportunities for every campus constituency to:

- Understand and value the cultural assets that all of us bring to educational experiences;
- Embrace and participate in policies of institutional change relating to racial and social justice as well as continuous improvement to better meet the needs of everyone in our learning community;
- Build high-quality learning opportunities by ensuring equitable access to effective educational practices;
- Maintain a welcoming and empowering campus climate for all students, faculty members, staff and alumni.

PECC seeks to increase equity across the university and its various constituent groups: students, staff and faculty by establishing the following goals with specific actions to be identified on an annual basis:

- Cultivate a sustainable and equitable community, through changing institutional structures and implementing educational programs where members from all backgrounds, identities, abilities, and life experiences are welcomed, valued, and supported by an anti-racist campus climate.

- Enhance the effectiveness of the curriculum, educational programs, and equitable support services with regard to diversity and equity.

- Improve recruitment, retention, matriculation and graduation rates of students whose identities are underrepresented, marginalized and/or under-resourced in higher education in general, and CSU Long Beach in particular.

- Increase the diversity of faculty, staff and administrators through innovative recruitment, hiring and retention practices to better reflect the diverse identities and experiences represented in our student population and the larger community in which we are embedded.
