Laura Henriques and Anna Ortiz have recently published “Shaping Your Career: A Guide for Early-career Faculty Trying to Get Tenure.” To help remedy this, Drs. Don Haviland, Yolanda Pérez-Primera, and Lindsay Pérez Huber have written “Shaping Faculty Careers.”

Faculty life is challenging. Professors juggle teaching and advising students, conducting research, committee assignments and much more, creating a difficult road for students of color. These inequalities are all too real and can negatively affect people of color in academia.

Subtle racist remarks, jokes, and assumptions are automatic or unconscious. Subtle racist remarks, jokes, and assumptions can be commonplace and delivered to teacher candidates in my courses, and we have been exploring possible strategies to address them.

In the past two decades, I have been asked this question each year: “What do I need to know about teaching reading today?”

I believe that the most important question is: “How do I teach effectively to those who are different from me?”

The Million Dollar Question: “How do I Teach Reading Effectively?”

The College of Education is excited to continue and expand our programming, partnerships, and initiatives this year, to promote educational equity and excellence in our region and beyond. We are excited to celebrate the many accomplishments of our students, faculty, and staff.

Best wishes to you from the College of Education for a very happy 2019! We are proud partners of Long Beach Unified School District (LBUSD) Adult Community Transition Program, and we are excited to continue and expand our programming, partnerships, and initiatives this year, to promote educational equity and excellence in our region and beyond.

Dear Friends,

Sally Casanova Pre-Doctoral Graduate Research Fellow & UTeach Alumna Accepted into Star Program at SETI Institute

Institute in Northern California where Tran will work as a Fellow alongside a fellow College of Ed UTeach alumna, Lauren Tran, was recently accepted into the SETI Institute's Star Program. Tran's work will focus on exoplanet habitability, astrobiology, and SETI (Search for Extraterrestrial Intelligence).

Dean and Professor Shireen Pavri, Ph.D.

As always, please stay connected with the College and share with us your latest news and updates. We are proud to celebrate the many accomplishments of our students, faculty, and staff.

Meet Joe Hernandez, a student in the College of Education's Center for Evaluation and Educational Effectiveness (CEE). Joe is a recipient of the 2018 California Civil Rights Act of 1964 Educational Commemoration of the Year, CSULB alumnus in Education and Counseling, and nominee for National Teacher of the Year Award and 2018 California Teacher of the Year Award. Joe Hernandez has a long list of accomplishments, including founding and leading the first annual LBUSD Adult Community Transition Program in Long Beach, volunteering for the Black Youth Project, member of the Peace Exchange Chicago-Asia, a panelist for the U.S. Congressional Educational Emmy Awards, a recipient of the 2018 California Civil Rights Act of 1964 Educational Commemoration of the Year, and a recipient of the 2018 California Teacher of the Year Award.

Bailey Spillane, CED Student

Bailey Spillane, CED Student, is a UTeach Alumna and has set the bar in her own success story. A severe car accident 10 years ago, but it was how she chose to rebound from that accident that sets her apart. Bailey Spillane is on a career path in Higher Education, is on a career path in Student Development in Education. Read more about Bailey Spillane's journey on our website.

Meet Undergraduate ITEP student Bailey Spillane

Bailey Spillane, CED Student, is a UTeach Alumna and has set the bar in her own success story. A severe car accident 10 years ago, but it was how she chose to rebound from that accident that sets her apart. Bailey Spillane is on a career path in Higher Education, is on a career path in Student Development in Education. Read more about Bailey Spillane's journey on our website.

College of Education Receives Three OSEP Grants

Totaling $3.7 Million

The U.S. Department of Education recently announced three grants benefitting various College of Education programs. Read more about these grants on our website.

College of Education Receives Three OSEP Grants

Totaling $3.7 Million

The College of Education has been a proud partner of Long Beach Unified School District (LBUSD) Adult Community Transition Program, and we are excited to continue and expand our programming, partnerships, and initiatives this year, to promote educational equity and excellence in our region and beyond.

Best wishes to you from the College of Education for a very happy 2019! We are excited to continue and expand our programming, partnerships, and initiatives this year, to promote educational equity and excellence in our region and beyond.

As always, please stay connected with the College and share with us your latest news and updates. We are proud to celebrate the many accomplishments of our students, faculty, and staff.

Dear Friends,

Sally Casanova Pre-Doctoral Graduate Research Fellow & UTeach Alumna Accepted into Star Program at SETI Institute

Institute in Northern California where Tran will work as a Fellow alongside a fellow College of Ed UTeach alumna, Lauren Tran, was recently accepted into the SETI Institute's Star Program. Tran's work will focus on exoplanet habitability, astrobiology, and SETI (Search for Extraterrestrial Intelligence).

Dean and Professor Shireen Pavri, Ph.D.

As always, please stay connected with the College and share with us your latest news and updates. We are proud to celebrate the many accomplishments of our students, faculty, and staff.

Meet Joe Hernandez, a student in the College of Education's Center for Evaluation and Educational Effectiveness (CEE). Joe is a recipient of the 2018 California Civil Rights Act of 1964 Educational Commemoration of the Year, CSULB alumnus in Education and Counseling, and nominee for National Teacher of the Year Award. Joe Hernandez has a long list of accomplishments, including founding and leading the first annual LBUSD Adult Community Transition Program in Long Beach, volunteering for the Black Youth Project, member of the Peace Exchange Chicago-Asia, a panelist for the U.S. Congressional Educational Emmy Awards, a recipient of the 2018 California Civil Rights Act of 1964 Educational Commemoration of the Year, and a recipient of the 2018 California Teacher of the Year Award.

Bailey Spillane, CED Student, is a UTeach Alumna and has set the bar in her own success story. A severe car accident 10 years ago, but it was how she chose to rebound from that accident that sets her apart. Bailey Spillane is on a career path in Higher Education, is on a career path in Student Development in Education. Read more about Bailey Spillane's journey on our website.

Meet Undergraduate ITEP student Bailey Spillane

Bailey Spillane, CED Student, is a UTeach Alumna and has set the bar in her own success story. A severe car accident 10 years ago, but it was how she chose to rebound from that accident that sets her apart. Bailey Spillane is on a career path in Higher Education, is on a career path in Student Development in Education. Read more about Bailey Spillane's journey on our website.

College of Education Receives Three OSEP Grants

Totaling $3.7 Million

The U.S. Department of Education recently announced three grants benefitting various College of Education programs. Read more about these grants on our website.

College of Education Receives Three OSEP Grants

Totaling $3.7 Million

The College of Education has been a proud partner of Long Beach Unified School District (LBUSD) Adult Community Transition Program, and we are excited to continue and expand our programming, partnerships, and initiatives this year, to promote educational equity and excellence in our region and beyond.

Best wishes to you from the College of Education for a very happy 2019! We are excited to continue and expand our programming, partnerships, and initiatives this year, to promote educational equity and excellence in our region and beyond.

As always, please stay connected with the College and share with us your latest news and updates. We are proud to celebrate the many accomplishments of our students, faculty, and staff.

Dear Friends,